138 'Bigger' Gamblers on Police Lists, Fay Reveals

Names Furnished By Vice Squad Head; Maher to Analyze Prosecution Issues

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Police have knowledge of 138 big Washington gamblers, it was disclosed yesterday as part of rapid-fire developments in the impending special grand jury probe of gambling here.

The United States attorney's office said police have supplied a list of these 138 names, plus two other lists involving 28 persons allegedly involved in "interstate phases" of gambling here, and 23 persons on a "national" list with local tie-ins.

These disclosures yesterday were followed by an announcement by District Commissioner John Russell Young that Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher will assist Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett in making a study of the legal problems faced by police in making gambling arrests and getting convictions.

Not Connected With Probe

But Young flatly told reporters that Maher's assignment to aid Barrett "is not an outgrowth of the grand jury probe." He said, "There have been so many (gambling) arrests and cases thrown out (of court). . . . When you're handling gambling you need legal advice."

He said Maher, former assistant United States attorney who last October was named to his present job to handle "hot potatoes" for the Commissioners, will be able to counsel Major Barrett in an attempt to improve police chances of getting gambling convictions.

Maher's newest assignment came during a day which appeared to intensify the differences between Major Barrett and United States Attorney George Morris Fay—Maher's former boss—over the gambling probe which is set to begin May 17.

Accepts Blick's Assistance

In the fourth—and sharpest—of an involved series of four letters between Fay and Barrett over the role of police in the grand jury investigation, Fay disclosed that he had received from Lieut. Roy Blick, vice squad chief, the list of 138 "bigger gamblers of Washington."

Fay said that when he declined an offer of Barrett's for the use of police investigators in the coming probe—on grounds that the grand jury itself should decide that—he exempted from this the work which Lieutenant Blick was performing for Fay's office by stating to Barrett:

"As you know, we have availed ourselves of the assistance of Lieutenant Blick before previous (regular) grand juries, and we have requested that he obtain certain data for us in connection with the forthcoming investigation."

Wants Gamblers' Addresses

Major Barrett had replied to that letter, containing the quotation above, that he agreed that the grand jury should decide the question of police aid, and then asked:

". . . . So that there will be no misunderstanding . . . please advise me whether you desire Lieutenant Blick and his special squad to continue the assignment given them . . ."

This assignment, Fay revealed in his letter yesterday, was supplying "the correct business and home addresses" to the list of 138 names of "bigger gamblers of Washington."

Fay left Washington yesterday morning for a weekend trip to New York, after sending that letter to Barrett.

3 Lists Supplied by Blick

Assistant United States Attorney John W. Fihelly later made the disclosure that there were three lists of names of alleged gamblers supplied by Blick.

Some of the names, Fihelly said, appear on more than one list, and while the "interstate list"—composed primarily of persons with Maryland addresses—is complete with both names and addresses, the Washington list is not similarly "adequate."

Fihelly said Blick told him "about four men" would be needed to complete the local list, and said Blick asked him if he would object if he (Blick) asked Major Barrett for the men. Fihelly said he told Blick he had no objection, "but I

Tamm Approved By Subcommittee

Subcommittee approval of Edward Allen Tamm to be associate justice of District Court here was sent yesterday to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Judiciary Chairman Alexander Wiley (R., Wisc.) said his committee would act on the nomination some time before the end of the session. In the subcommittee vote, Chairman Forrest C. Donnell (R., Mo.) voted against Tamm, while members John S. Cooper (R., Ky.) and Harley M. Kilgore (D., W. Va.) voted for the assistant FBI director.

Western Powers Call on U. N. To Halt Atomic Negotiations

By Peter Kihss

Lake Success, N. Y., May 7 (NYHT).—The French, British and American delegations jointly proposed today the formal suspension of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission and its work on world atomic controls—until a day when the Soviet Union modifies its present resistance to majority views.

For the first time, a U. N. organ was about to confess failure—in name as well as in fact.

The proposal won immediate indorsement from Canada, Belgium, China and Colombia, giving it a needed majority of 7 in the 11-nation commission. The actual vote was deferred until next week, to give governments time to weigh the wording.

On the Soviet side, Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko objected that suspension wouldn't solve anything, and contended agreemegt was possible—"if the United States desires agreement." His Ukrainian colleague, Vassili A. Tarasenko, asserted the whole move was a United States effort to avoid accepting atomic obligations and to "keep its hands free."

Francois de Rose, a 37-year-old diplomat, who fought in Tunisia and Normandy during World War II, presented the three-power statement in the commission.

The statement flatly blamed the "impasse" over atomic controls on the Soviet Union. The Soviets have insisted on the right of national atomic development, subject to limited international inspection, which the majority deems inadequate.

The three western powers declared they had concluded that atomic agreement "is itself dependent on cooperation in broader fields of policy." So they recommended that the negotiations be suspended until the General Assembly, or the five great powers plus Canada, which originally initiated the atomic negotiations, "find through prior consultation that there exists a basis for agreement on the international control of atomic energy."

They proposed that the confession of failure be submitted to the Security Council as a third commission report, and that the Council then forward the tale to all 58 member nations of the U. N., "as a matter of special concern" for the General Assembly's next regu-

Fish Dealer's Home Robbed Of $29,450

Fund Hidden in Two Caches While Family Is Busy at Market

A daylight thief or thieves yesterday stripped the home of a local fish dealer of all stored cash—a total of $29,450.

The loss was reported to police last night by Harry Mensh, 49, of 906 7th st. sw., who has operated Harry's Fish Market, 1103 Maine ave. sw., for the past quarter century.

Half of the money, Mensh said, was his and his wife's savings, while the other half belonged jointly to their three sons-in-law. It was taken from two caches, in a trunk and a china closet in the dining room, but the entire two-story brick home was ransacked in the process, he said.

The fish merchant said he and his wife discovered the loss when they returned home from their shop at 7 p. m. and found the lock on the front door broken. Detectives searched the home for fingerprints.

Mensh said about half the money taken was being saved by his wife for their sons-in-law, Daniel Rudden, a grocer of 300 L st. sw.; Robert Piker, salesman for a soda distributing company, who recently moved to California, and Len Armison, radio repairman for Hecht Co. department store.

Excepting five $100 bills, the money was in bills of $20, $10 and $5 denominations, Mensh told police.

The fish dealer came to this country from Poland in 1921. His wife-to-be followed within a year and the two were married on her arrival in New York. They have since operated the Maine ave. fish market.

Former Premier U Saw Is Hanged

Rangoon, Burma (Saturday) May 8 (AP).—Former Premier U Saw was hanged today for the attempted coup and assassination of seven Burmese cabinet members last July 19. He was executed at 5:15 a. m.

Witnesses said U Saw strode firmly into the execution place, knelt briefly in prayer and then walked unassisted up the earthen ramp to the trap.

U Saw's hands were manacled behind him and the white death hood was slipped over his head. The noose was set in place and without delay the trap was sprung by a jailer.

Witnesses said he died without an apparent struggle.

District GOP Splits in Row Over Delegates

Group Quits Meeting At Willard; to Hold 'Rump' Convention

The District of Columbia came up with two Republican Parties last night—each firmly asserting its claim to sending delegates to the national party convention.

Upshot of long-brewing hostility, which already has led to court action, last night's development finally broke all ties between organizational Republicans and an insurgent group which walked out of a party meeting at the Willard Hotel to hold an independent "rump" convention.

The "rump" convention, held at the Hotel 2400, went a step further than the regularly constituted group and named State committee officers and delegates and alternates to the national convention as well. About 20 attended this meeting and named each other officers or delegates.

The "regular" partymen elected their 43 delegates-at-large by a unanimous vote from a mimeographed list of candidates nominated by Joseph C. McGarraghy, chairman of the party's credentials committee. There were no additional nominations from the floor.

Lee Named Delegate

Among the delegates at large elected at the "regular" convention was Adelbert W. Lee, member of the District Board of Education. Lee, previously elected as delegate from the Second District, had resigned as that district's delegate.

Edward F. Colladay, Republican National Committeeman for the District, was elected chairman of the "regular" meeting after the roll call which saw four delegates walk out to join the insurgents' convention. These were Leroy A. Bordeau, Thomas C. Smith, Mrs. Cynthia Fay de Bon Repos and the insurgent leader, Paul J. Foley, all of whom were subsequently elected to office in the Hotel 2400 convention.

H. C. Ames, labeled by both groups as a "Foley" man, remained in the Willard convention, but refrained from casting a vote on any of the measures brought before it.

The organization State committee, which elected 43 delegates at large last night to function with the 43 district delegates previously elected, will meet May 11 to organize the State committee and again on May 13 to elect delegates to the national convention.

Foley, a certified public accountant and lawyer, said his group is "the District of Columbia Republican State Committee." He declared that the basic difference

Elders Held Unable to Give Advice on Better Family Life

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Young people cannot find how "to do a better job of family building than their elders had done" in advice from those elders, Dr. Eduard C. Lindeman, professor of social philosophy at Columbia University, said last night.

And yet, he told a plenary session of the National Conference on Family Life, he has found high school students placing "better family life" first on their lists of pressing domestic problems. Technical advice from specialists, he added, aggravated some of the difficulties because it often "had little to do with the here and now."

Lindeman's talk opened a panel discussion of "utilizing the Strengths of Family Life" led by Dr. Alice V. Keliher, professor of education, New York University, at Lisner Auditorium. Mrs. Oswald B. Lord, chairman of the United States Committee, International Children's Emergency Fund, presided at the session.

The speaker gave these among reasons why each succeeding generation finds it more difficult to build "strong and resilient" families:

1. Mobility, that is the increasing movement of individuals and families.
2. Economic insecurity, rendering planning always difficult and often impossible.
3. The "housing paradox," or the inability of the richest nation on earth to furnish suitable shelter.
4. Changing standards of sexual behavior.
5. Inadequate and antiquated welfare services.
6. Decline of the religious sentiment.
7. War and the fear of war.

GOP Leaders Warn Senate Of Deadline

Number of Bills Must Get Action Before June 19 In Present Session

Post Reporter

Senate Republican leaders yesterday served notice that a number of bills may have to be dropped to meet a scheduled June 19 deadline to end the present session of Congress.

Chairman Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, indicated he was not sure Congress could adjourn by that date.

Pay Raise High on List

A Federal pay raise for Government workers was high on the second priority list for Senate action, Taft said.

Asked if the heavy legislative schedule may require Congress to recess for the political conventions and return later, Taft replied:

"I don't feel confident one way or another."

After a 2½-hour executive session of the GOP policy-makers, Taft listed four measures for immediate action by the Senate. They were:

1. The Southern compact to allow Southern States to cooperate in setting up joint educational facilities. This is now the pending business and will continue next week.
2. The War Department civil functions bill containing $708,586,666 for rivers and harbors and flood control. Taft said that Senator Clyde M. Reed (R., Kans.) "proposes to cut 200 million dollars from the measure." Reed and some other Republicans have termed the bill an "outrageous example of pork barrel legislation."

Refugee Bill on Calendar

3. A bill to admit 100,000 displaced persons from European refugee centers during the next two years. Taft said this might come up Friday.
4. A proposal to consolidate all congressional appropriations into a single bill. Taft said there is some opposition to this measure sponsored by Senators Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) and Hugh Butler (R., Nebr.).

On the second priority list for Senate action Taft listed the following:

1. A bill to raise the pay of Government workers.
2. The GOP proposal to extend terms of David E. Lilienthal and other present members of the Atomic Energy Commission for two years instead of the staggered 1 to 5 year terms now in the present law. Taft said he would join with Senate President Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) in supporting the two year term.

Would Exempt News Vendors

3. The Gearhart bill to exempt news vendors from social security coverage.
4. The military bill now before the Senate Military Affairs Committee covering draft-UMT. The Senate Armed Services Committee met yesterday but did not reach a final decision on the legislation.
5. An antilynch bill.

Taft said he didn't want to give the impression that antilynch legislation might be shelved in the adjournment rush simply because he listed it fifth.

The Senate Judiciary Committee met again yesterday on the bill. Chairman Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.) said the committee probably

White House Conferences Fail To Ease Threat of Rail Strike; Freight Curbs Extended Here

Full Steam From the White House . . .

Steelman Reports 'Nothing Definite' After Parleys With Top Negotiators

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

With a national strike scheduled for Tuesday morning, the rail situation was still in a complete deadlock last night.

It was learned reliably that White House conferences yesterday—two with union leaders and one with the top negotiator for the railroads—did nothing to resolve the issues.

John R. Steelman, assistant to the President and White House labor expert, conducted the meetings. He was quoted by the President's press secretaries as saying that the meetings were only "exploratory" and "without definite results."

No Avenue Apparent

Steelman summoned the main negotiating committee of the railroads, in Chicago yesterday, to meet with him here as early as possible today. Meanwhile, he asked the union heads to stand by subject to his call.

After seeing the carriers' negotiators today, it will be up to Steelman to decide whether joint conferences would be fruitful.

But as of last night, no avenue toward settlement was apparent. The railroads, it was learned, take the position that they have made a settlement with 90 per cent of their employes; they cannot afford to give more to the remaining 10, for then the additional grant would have to be broadened to include all the rest.

And the 10 per cent—three of the five "operating" brotherhoods of railway workers—insist they cannot accept the settlement taken by the other two operating brotherhoods and the 18 nonoperating unions.

Officials Doubt Strike

This seemed to leave very little leeway for bargaining or compromise. Even so, the consensus among Federal officials and other observers was that the odds were against a strike.

If the unions walked out, they would face an overwhelmingly hostile public reaction. They would be in the position of refusing a settlement recommended by a presidential fact-finding board, and accepted by the great bulk of their fellow unions.

For precedent on what would happen, they have the situation of two years ago. The President, Congress and the public reacted against the strike of May, 1946, with a degree of vehemence that no union had experienced in a generation.

One approach, it was thought, that might be tried to get an agreement was the matter of operating "rules." These are complicated regulations prescribing, among other things, the hours, pay computation methods and operating procedures of railway labor.

Some of them permit different interpretations. Some observers thought that definitions of some of the rules, in a manner favoring the unions, might conceivably be the basis of a compromise.

Pay Is Big Demand

But the unions' big demand is for a $3-a-day, or 30 per cent, wage increase. The carriers offer the settlement accepted by the other unions and recommended by a fact-finding board created under the Railway Labor Act. It provides a pay increase of 15½ cents an hour.

Steelman conferred yesterday with Alvanley Johnston, head of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; D. B. Robertson, head of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen, and A. J. Glover, head of the Switchmen's Union. The conference lasted four hours. Then Steelman met for another hour with W. T. Faricy, president of the Association of American Railroads. This last meeting was in preparation for today's discussion with the rest of the carriers' negotiating committee.

Earlier in the day, the threatening situation was discussed at Mr. Truman's Cabinet meeting. When it ended, Attorney General Tom C. Clark told reporters that he had given the President a written opinion that the Government had the power to seize and operate the railroads.

At first it was indicated that Clark would make the opinion public later in the day. This plan was reversed, however, without explanation.

Clark made it clear, however, that no seizure orders have been drawn up.

GOP Efforts For Agreement On Draft Stall

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

GOP efforts to get the Senate and House Armed Services Committees to agree on a draft bill bogged down yesterday and the groups went ahead with plans to push two widely varying measures.

The committees are in general agreement on the terms of the two-year draft for 19-through-25-year men, but House members will have none of the Senate proposal to call up 18-year-olders for a year's training.

Meanwhile, Senate Republican Policy Chief Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) announced that the military manpower bill and any other preparedness measures will have top priority for floor consideration between now and adjournment.

He also told reporters he would support the draft if it is the only way to get manpower for the armed forces. And declared he didn't think the substitute proposed by Representative Leo Allen (R., Ill.) to lure men into uniform by $1000 to $1500 cash bonuses is practical.

Other GOP leaders have been cool to the Allen plan. Many are predicting passage of some form of draft legislation before final adjournment.

Both Houses of Congress may have a selective service bill under debate week after next. The House Armed Services Committee already has its version ready, and progress on the problem was reported yesterday by the Senate committee.

Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) said that tentative approval

5 of 6 Roads Hauling Freight To District Halt Perishables

Railroads that carry more than half of the Nation's freight announced yesterday they would accept no more perishable goods which might be caught in transit if a railroad strike materializes Tuesday.

Five of the six roads hauling freight to Washington were to put such bans in effect at 12:10 a. m. today.

Fifty-eight railroads reported embargoes to the Association of American Railroads here.

The Pennsylvania Railroad said last night its entire train, shop and track operations will be suspended if the strike is called.

The Railway Express Agency said that in event of a rail strike it "will furlough without pay all men who are not needed to handle traffic on hand." Kinsey N. Merritt, vice president in charge of traffic, said the action would be Nation-wide.

The embargo on livestock, live poultry, meat and produce began at Western production centers yesterday and started spreading eastward. They were timed so that no railroad would be caught with a perishable shipment on the tracks at the moment of the strike deadline, 6 a. m. Tuesday in each time zone.

Meat Shortage Threatens

Meat and produce shippers turned a frantic eye toward truck and air lines.

The District's biggest problem, if the strike materializes, would be a meat shortage, food wholesalers agreed yesterday. Washington gets about 95 per cent of its meat by rail. Joseph Danzansky, counsel for the wholesale food division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, said some arrangements were in the making for refrigerator trucks at Chicago, but at most, the District could hope for little relief that way.

The meat supply would run out in a week or 10 days, he said.

Second in seriousness would be a shortage of produce. From 60 to 70 per cent comes in now by rail. Danzansky said after rechecking his earlier estimate of 99 per cent. The supply of carrots, broccoli and green peas would be virtually cut off, since these originate this time of the year mostly on the West Coast.

Nearly all other items are avail-

Steam Plant Funds Pruned From TVA Bill

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Republican-controlled House Appropriations Committee yesterday aimed a major blow at TVA expansion. In effect, it confined future development of the Tennessee Valley to hydroelectric power, already nearing its peak.

An Administration recommendation for four million dollars to start work on a steam generating plant to "firm up" the system was eliminated by a party-line, 4 to 3, subcommittee vote. The full committee then approved the cut.

The committee action precipitated a major private versus public power controversy, as subcommittee Democrats filed a scorching minority report charging private power companies are behind the proposed TVA "ceiling."

Representative Albert Gore (D., Tenn.), one of the Democrats who signed the minority finding, said an appeal will be made to the House to restore the item on the floor.

Companies 'Racing' To Expand

"While the private power companies themselves are racing to add new facilities in other sections, would they urge the Congress to say that here in the Tennessee Valley alone the ceiling on development has been reached?" said the minority report. "'Is the Congress to say to this one region, 'This far and no farther you can go?'"

Subcommittee Republicans, led by Representative Walter C. Ploeser (R., Mo.) questioned whether Congress ever intended TVA "to meet all of the power requirements of the valley" and called the proposal to build a steam generating

Arabs Accept Jerusalem Truce

Britain Asks 3-Power Nucleus To Form Palestine Successor

Jewish Area Invasion Cancellation Hinted

Jerusalem, Palestine, May 7 (U.P.).—Arab leaders today agreed to a truce for the entire Jerusalem area, effective at noon Saturday.

At the same time, hints came from high Arab quarters that there may be no major Arab invasion of Jewish areas in Palestine when the British mandate expires one week from tonight.

Arab delegates, at a conference in Jericho with Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, British high commissioner, agreed to cease fire in Jerusalem if the Jews did likewise.

[Informed of this development, a spokesman for the Jewish agency said: "The moment the Arabs stop firing we shall stop also," the Associated Press said.]

Intimations Conditioned

The intimations the Arab armies might not invade Jewish areas of Palestine were conditioned on the Jews' evacuating Arab areas.

Presumably this would mean that King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan would seek to occupy only Arab areas as defined in the United Nations partition plan.

Official sources said they did not believe a major Arab offensive was planned.

One reason is disagreement among the leaders of the seven Arab states.

U. S., French, Belgian Members Suggested

Lake Success, N. Y., May 7 (U.P.).—Britain suggested in the United Nations tonight that the United States, France and Belgium serve as the nucleus of a "neutral" authority to succeed the British mandate in Palestine a week from Saturday.

Arthur Creech Jones, British colonial secretary, told a U. N. subcommittee that the consuls of the three nations, now serving as a U. N. truce commission on the spot, could be supplemented by one or two "outstanding persons" recognized as neutrals in the Palestine dispute and also by the chairman of the U. N. Palestine Commission, Karel Lisicky of Czechoslovakia.

This was the first time Britain has made a concrete suggestion on the composition of the government it feels should fall heir to the British mandate.

Inclusion Is Surprise

Inclusion of Lisicky in the suggested "neutral" government came as a surprise since he comes from a country in the Soviet orbit and the western powers have been carefully avoiding any step that might open the door to Russian influence in the Holy Land's future.

The British suggestion came as U. N. officials carried on intense

District Sales Tax Hearings Set for Wednesday, Thursday

By Edward Ryan
Post Reporter

Congressiional hearings on a sales tax for the District were ordered by Capitol leaders yesterday for 10 a. m., Wednesday and Thursday.

The hearings will be held in the Senate District Committee room at the Capitol. They will be conducted by House and Senate Fiscal Affairs Subcommittees headed by Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.) and Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.).

The call for the hearings was issued by Bates and Cain after they met for an informal morning conference on the District budget problem.

The problem is that the House has approved an appropriation for the District for the year starting July 1 that totals several million dollars more than the available estimated revenue.

The appropriation total is 101 million dollars. The sales tax for the District, at a 2 per cent rate and with exemptions for food, medicine and some other items, has been recommended by the District Commissioners to bring in an additional 6 million dollars next year to underwrite the budget.

The estimated yield for the sales tax in the new fiscal year starting July 1 is calculated with the idea that the city would actually get returns for only about seven months in the first year the proposed new levy operates. For a full year it would yield an estimated 13.5 million.

While the Cain-Bates Committee has held extensive District revenue hearings this year and last in which the sales tax has figured largely, next week's hearing is the first scheduled exclusively on the sales tax.

Truman June Trip Tagged 'No Politics'

By the United Press

The White House said yesterday that President Truman's cross-country swing next month will not be a political trip, but a Senate Republican leader commented that "no one will be fooled."

Senate Republican Whip Kenneth S. Wherry of Nebraska said it reminded him of so-called nonpolitical trips that the late President Roosevelt took in the 1936 and 1940 campaign years.

"In 1936 Roosevelt made a nonpolitical drought survey," Wherry said. "In 1940 he made a nonpolitical inspection tour of defense planes. It wasn't until 1944, when he became afraid of a Republican victory that he actually got out and campaigned.

Same Technique, He Says

"I don't know what they'll call this nonpolitical trip of President Truman's, but the technique is the same and no one will be fooled this time. It merely proves that the issue in this campaign is whether the people want a fifth term in the White House for the New Deal."

Another Republican Senator who favors Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the Republican presidential nomination, said Mr. Truman's impending trip reminds him also of a Western vacation journey that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York took last year.

He pointed out that Dewey wasn't an avowed candidate for the GOP nomination at the time, but he did see many Western Republican leaders.

The non-political tag was hung on Mr. Truman's trip by White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross.

Non-Political Groups

"It is not a campaign trip in the sense that one goes out and makes political speeches under political auspices," said Ross. He emphasized this by pointing out that Mr. Truman's major speeches will be made under auspices of non-political organizations.

They include a Swedish-American centennial celebration in Chicago, a reunion of the President's World War I outfit in Omaha; a commencement address at the University of California, and a luncheon talk to the Greater Los Angeles Press Club.

The political question was raised because California Democratic leaders complained that Mr. Truman was snubbing them on his Western calendar. Rollin L. McNitt, chairman of the Los Angeles County central Democratic committee, said the President made the press club date without consulting local party leaders or responding to their own invitation.

Ross said that if McNitt sent an invitation, it did not reach Mr. Truman. The President told his news conference Thursday he accepted the only invitation he received from Los Angeles and that was from the Greater Los Angeles Press Club.

Rights Revolt Revived

Meanwhile, the revolt of Southern Democrats against President Truman on the civil rights issue was revived by Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S.C.).

Johnston, as Democratic national committeeman for South Carolina, received one of 300 or more letters mailed by Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath appealing for campaign contributions.

Johnston wrote back that South Carolina Democrats wouldn't contribute even a "Confederate dollar" to the national committee unless it dumps President Truman overboard.

"In South Carolina I could not possibly raise one Confederate dollar for the national Democratic Party as presently constituted," he said. "In fact, I wouldn't attempt it. . . .

"If we can secure the nomination of an acceptable candidate at the Philadelphia convention, and a platform acceptable to our people, then the Democratic Party will have once again the enthusiastic and loyal support of South Carolina."

Bill Due Up Soon

The civil rights program that set off the Southern revolt against Mr. Truman included requests for Federal anti-polltax and anti-lynch legislation.

Senator Taft, after a Senate Republican policy committee meeting today said the antilynch bill would be brought up for floor debate soon after the Senate completes action on a pending draft bill.

He wouldn't set an exact date because it would give advance warning to Southern Democrats who intended to filibuster the civil rights measures.

AFL Board Pigeonholes Truman Recommendation

Pittsburgh, May 7 (AP).—The executive board of the (AFL) Pennsylvania Federation of Labor today disclosed it had pigeon-holed its recommendation that President Truman be indorsed for re-election.

The board said its presidential indorsement at this time "should be deferred" in view of "very recent developments in the political situation."

Socialists Plan Move to Draft Thomas

Reading, Pa., May 7 (AP).—The twenty-sixth annual national convention of the Socialist Party began today on the familiar note of "Draft Thomas."

And Norman Thomas, 64-year-old New Yorker, who five times has been his party's candidate for President said, "I may have to accept nomination if the convention goes as I think it will.

"I'll watch proceedings and decide tomorrow," he told a reporter. Nomination of the President and Vice President candidates is scheduled for Sunday morning.

Krueger to Stay Out

Thomas, elected today to the important platform committee, said his running mate in 1940, Prof. Maynard Krueger of the University of Chicago, has declined to be a candidate for President.

National Secretary Harry Fleischmann of New York, predicted in his annual report Socialist candidates will appear on the presidential ballot in "from 33 to 37 States and our presidential ticket will be placed before at least 80 per cent of the American electorate."

Dewey to Debate Control of Reds With Stassen

By the United Press

Harold E. Stassen said last night he will fly to Oregon in a few days to debate Communist control measures with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York. Both are candidates in Oregon's Republican presidential preference primary May 21.

Stassen said he challenged the New York Governor to debate the question and Dewey has accepted the challenge.

Stassen has been advocating that the Communist Party be outlawed. Dewey has described the proposal as "unconstitutional, immoral and totalitarian."

Students Oppose Police on Parking Ban

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

CAMPUS AROUSED—University of Nebraska students, who swarmed from classrooms when they spotted two police wrecking crews removing double-parked autos from campus drives, mill around the cops and vehicles before a tear-gas bomb broke up the demonstration yesterday. The Lincoln (Nebr.) Police Department recently prohibited diagonal parking in favor of parallel and the students argue that the new ruling left them without sufficient space for their cars. Hundreds of the students, many of them former GIs, own autos between the two groups is that "we consider our committee a public organization, not a private club."

He charged that James C. Wilkes, chairman of the organization group, "is on record as opposing public housing, which is a plank in the platform of the Republication Party."

The insurgents named M. E. Volk, real estate broker, chairman of the State committee, and Joseph Roth, public relations man, vice chairman.

They also elected Leroy (Ox) Bordeau, Georgetown University fullback and heavyweight boxer of the early 30's, secretary. He is now a diamond broker. Thomas C. Smith, television and fire alarm dealer, was named treasurer.

Foley, Mrs. de Bon Repos, a housewife, and Harold Jackson, a disc jockey on WINX, were selected delegates to the national convention in Philadelphia. Alternates named were Frederick Stevenson, a lawyer, Bordeau and Smith.

Volk said the insurgent delegation would go to the national convention pledged for a specific presidential candidate to be selected at a meeting to be held June 14. The delegates picked last night will be certified with the national convention early next week, he said. He commented that the other organization Republicans had said they would send uninstructed delegates.

"Rump" Delegates Named

On the slate elected by the regulars at the Willard were:

Bruce Baird, Chapin B. Bauman, Thomas C. R. Bragg, Dr. Joseph C. Brazier, Grace L. Brearley, Lewis T. Breuninger, Mrs. Marie T. Brown, Ruth M. Brown, Judge James C. Cobb, Dr. William K. Collins, Mrs. William S. Culbertson, Charles Delmar, Joshua Evans, jr., Robert V. Fleming, Mrs. Edward E. Gann.

C. C. Glover, jr., Hyman M. Goldstein, William H Grass, Augustus Gumpert, the Rev. C. H. Hamilton, Col. George L. Hart, jr., Clarence B. Hewes, Clarence E. Kefauver, Adelbert W. Lee, Luther W. Linkins, Rufus S. Lusk, Marian C. McGarraghy, Claude W. Owen, Barrington D. Parker.

Col. James H. Rees, Fred J. Schaefer, James E. Schwab, C. Melvin Sharpe, Paul E. Shorb, A. J. Somerville, Warren L. Stephenson, Harry Stull, Dr. M. T. Walker, Helen Gatley Wheeler, James E. White, Edna Cross Wilkes, James C. Wilkes, Mrs. Ella Wingfield.

Nebraska U. Students Row With Police

Lincoln, Nebr., May 7 (U.P.).—University of Nebraska students marched on the State Capitol today after city police exploded a tear gas bomb to break up a demonstration over a parking problem.

Gov. Val Peterson gave the students his sympathy and passed the buck to university officials.

The students swarmed from classrooms shortly before noon when they saw wrecking crews removing double-parked automobiles from campus drives. They began to dismantle a wrecker.

City police attempted to disperse the 2000 to 2500 students. The students let the air out of the police tires. Police then exploded the tear gas bomb.

The students rushed to the police station and later to the Captiol.

Impounded cars were released by police without fines and the university said it would study the problem.

Stassen Sees Oregon Victory Over Dewey

By The Associated Press

Harold E. Stassen predicted yesterday he would beat Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in Oregon's Republican presidential preference primary May 21.

Stassen and Dewey are the only two candidates entered for the State's 12 delegates to the Republican National Convention.

Meanwhile Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright appealed personally to four congressional leaders yesterday to recall Gen. Douglas MacArthur from Japan and get his views on how to defend the United States against domestic and foreign enemies. General Wainwright is chairman of the Veterans Committee for MacArthur for President.

Wainwright said his one-time commanding general has had more experience than any living American in dealing with national preparedness and subversive elements and should be permitted to advise Congress on those problems.

Dewey has been campaigning in Oregon since May 1. Stassen has done some campaigning there and is scheduled to return May 17 for another four-day swing.

Stassen made his prediction on the Oregon primary when he came here for a series of weekend conferences with his campaign managers.

In West Virginia Today

"The indications are that the people of Oregon will support us the same as they did in Wisconsin and Nebraska," he said.

Stassen beat Dewey in Nebraska and Wisconsin but lost their first-round meeting in New Hampshire. The Oregon primary will be their last meeting before the national convention.

Stassen said he will go today to West Virginia, where he is the only entry in the State's May 11 primary, and will visit North Carolina next Tuesday.

In response to questions about last Tuesday's Ohio primary, in which he won only 9 of 23 delegate contests with Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Stassen said:

"That's nine more than we would have had otherwise. It is nine more than the Senator predicted we would get and three less than I predicted."

Wainwright Writes Legislators

General Wainwright made his latest appeal that his candidate be brought home before the Republican Convention at Philadelphia next month, in identical letters to the four congressional leaders. He delivered them personally to Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Chairman Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) of the Senate Appropriations Committee, Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and Chairman John Taber (R., N. Y.) of the House Appropriations Committee.

"Your duty to the United States demands that you summon Douglas MacArthur to appear before you immediately, and give our country the vast benefits of his unlimited practical experience and knowledge," Wainwright wrote.

He said MacArthur knew that this country's present enemies "desire first to accomplish their objective of the destruction of our constitutional democracy by means of revolution and civil war.

"Their last resort only would be real war from the land, sea and air," he added.

Dewey Hails Vote For 70 Air Groups

Medford, Oreg., May 7 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey tonight praised the Senate for approving a 70-group Air Force and overruling "men of little vision."

The New York Governor rapped the Administration, saying it was permitting the Nation to appear so weak "that dictators feel our solders can be pushed around and shot in the back."

"Our National Government is warning us in the gravest terms of warlike conditions," the presidential aspirant said in an address prepared for delivery at the armory. "Strange submarines are reported by the Government off Alaska, off the Atlantic Coast, and off the shores of California. The Russians have been threatening to throw us out or bully us out of Berlin.

"Under all these conditions our Government should be doing something to halt the tide. The fact is that our national Administration has made almost every possible blunder and we ought to get rid of it at the first possible moment."

Dewey praised the Congress for opposing a smaller air force.

"It is clear," he declared, "that we must start immediately to build up our military strength by whatever means are necessary in order to protect America.

"Most of all, we must create an air force which is the most powerful striking force in the world. The Senate voted to do just that job and we can sleep better at night because they have overruled the men of little vision in our National Administration."

Americans must insist, he said, that the Administration "stop listening to the left-wingers, the Communist propaganda and its own fears."

Coming here after a rain-swept day of campaigning in southwestern Oregon, the New York Governor asserted that Communists and their fellow travelers have been allowed to capture the imagination of the world. Even in America, he said, "we have people who believe our system is foredoomed to failure."

Army Reports Shrinkage at 1000 a Week

A new postwar low in its strength was disclosed by the Army yesterday as the congressional wrangle over President Truman's military expansion program entered its ninth week.

The Army revealed that it had lost approximately 8000 men in the last two months, bringing its strength to an estimated 534,000 men.

The number necessary to maintain an adequate ready striking force at home and meet present commitments abroad has been set by Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Chief of Staff, at 837,000 men. The Army is thus 303,000 men short and shrinking at a rate of about 1000 men a week.

The Navy and Marine Corps also show shrinkages, although at a smaller rate. Only the Air Force shows a steady climb. Estimates for May 1 show that the three services are 620,000 below the allocation of 2,005,882 established by the Andrews draft bill, which was reported out of the House Armed Services Committee last Monday.

Strike May Halt Freedom Train Tour

Brainerd, Minn., May 7 (AP).—The Nation-wide tour of the Freedom Train may be halted by the threatened strike of railroad operating unions Tuesday, W. H. S. O'Brien said here tonight.

GOP Draft Bill Plan Fails

had been given the major portion of its bill and that a vote may be taken on it Monday.

Unless the full membership of the group throws out the 18-year-old one-year training draft, or the Senate turns it down, however, the issue appears headed for a deadlock between the upper and the lower chambers.

Senator Taft has been trying to get the Republican leaders of the two committees to agree to a uniform plan. There has been at least one meeting of some members of the group, however, with no disposition on either side to yield.

In another defense development yesterday, the Armed Forces Munitions Board added 144 war plants to the Nation's industrial reserve. The action increased the number of plants which must be retained for possible war use to 423, with a total value of seven billion dollars.

A resurvey of the war plant situation was ordered a month ago, and a "freeze" was placed on further sales of Government-owned factories built during the war.

Yesterday's action took 114 plants valued at $1,254,000,000 off the unconditional sales list of the War Assets Administration. They still can be sold or leased to private industry, but the contract must contain a so-called "national security clause." This requires the buyer or lessee to keep them in such shape that they can be reconverted to war production within four months.

Elders' Advice Rated Low

ating alone," he declared, "is a distinct threat to stable family life; when two or more function in concert the threat becomes ominous."

The essence of the family crisis, Lindeman said, is life in a dominant industrial civilization which has accelerated beyond the knowledge of how to nourish and sustain young families in it. Sex customs, religion and war, while not so directly related to industrial civilization, he added, are integral to its pattern.

Family strength, he declared, rests on a combination of factors in which cooperation, economic frankness, unity rather than uniformity, humor, and readiness to face tragedy are important.

One thing needed, he said, is community planning with family life in mind. Another is democracy within the family. To meet the inevitable family tragedies, he said, principles of mental hygiene must be applied; they must cultivate a sense of reality.

Industrial Cooperation Vital

Boris Shishkin, American Federation of Labor economist and conference vice chairman, said in a statement yesterday that joint action of labor and management is necessary if the family welfare is to be served fully and effectively. Such cooperation, he added, should lead to better industrial relations.

"I earnestly believe," he said, "that many industrial disputes . . . take place only because representatives of labor and management meet only to settle disputes and resolve conflicts. If unions and management make a practice to meet and agree on joint programs that deal not only with the problems of employment and of production, but also with the welfare of the community and of the family in the community, they could jointly give rise to a tremendous drive in which the combined resources of organized labor and management can be geared to the public interest.

"Out of such a mutual relationship is bound to come a better mutual understanding of management problems by labor and of labor problems by the management."

Adverse effects on health, housing and diet of declining purchasing power were pictured in a report by John Corson, circulation manager of The Washington Post and chairman of the Economic Welfare Committee. Stabilization of the basic economy, the report said, was "essential to social security."

"As yet," it said, "our social security system does not assure any protection to many families and provides inadequate income for those it does protect. Moreover the soaring cost of living constitutes a serious menace to all social insurance. Wages for those still employed may rise, but insurance income for retired persons or survivor families does not."

The report pointed out that excessive demands upon the economy give small promise for any early lessening of inflationary pressures. Even higher incomes would be of little help, it said, unless production could at the same time be raised.

Failure to stabilize economic activity at its present high level, the report warned, threatens "unemployment, lower production, reduced standards of living, and all the accompanying hazards to the security essential for healthy family life."

Many families, it noted, have gone into debt and would find themselves in a serious predicament should national income and prices drop. Many other families whose income has not kept pace, it added, have consumed their savings.

The situation today, the report pointed out, is not like that of the postwar twenties, when optimism ran high. Uncertainty, it said, is now the rule and even home ownership is no anchor, since a home bought at too high a price "may cloud the family's economic security for many years to come."

Urge More Rental Homes

The Housing Committee reported that "too many families are now being blackjacked into home ownership" and said more homes were needed for rent. Buying homes at present prices and small initial equities, it said, "is distorting family budgets for a generation to come."

"Families must have a greater choice of tenure," it declared, "including not only the traditional possibilities of buying or renting, but we must encourage new forms of tenure such as cooperative and mutual housing developments, and perhaps others as yet unforeseen."

In addition, the committee reported, realistic home building should include recognition of the needs of various stages of family life. This, it said, would include providing homes for families beginning, expanding and contracting.

The committee indorsed the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill, including the public housing feature. It would not solve all national housing problems, it conceded, but would be "the first indispensable step."

James V. Armstrong, director of Community Service, committee for Kentucky, and chairman of the conference committee on community participation, reported evidence of a tendency "to squeeze even the individual, the family and the community heart into a rigid, standardized, formalized mold."

"Rigid, handed-down programs," the report said, "are too much the order of the day. 'Strays' seeking self-expression and effective measures to meet local conditions too often find themselves being whipped back into line."

Armstrong reported that shortcomings of community service should be detected and eliminated at the community level. Individuals and communities, he said, desire to be developers as well as performers, with State and national agencies in advisory roles.

Inside the modern home as well as outside, the report pointed out, demands upon women have greatly increased. In addition to their traditional tasks, it noted, women now must master all sorts of mechanical gadgets. Outside the home, new demands were found to be even greater.

"Modern woman," Armstrong reported, " . . . cannot isolate herself from the community's schools, its churches, its recreational, health and welfare agencies. She must concern herself with matters preeminently suited to her talents, namely, human relations, in which the world has so far seemed to fail. Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire must tend a larger hearthstone."

Parenthood Education Urged

At section meetings throughout the day discussions of family growth were continued.

Preparation for marriage and parenthood needs educational programs which will attract men as well as women, a section headed by Dr. Ralph H. Ojeman, associate professor of psychology and education at Iowa University, concluded. The section also suggested training in community cooperation in high schools and attention to the problem of helping people use time made available by labor-saving devices.

A section headed by Dr. C. B. Loomis, director of community development program, Oklahoma A. & M. College, felt that help for families was impeded by too much specialization and failure to inform people where to go. It decided also that a policy was needed to arouse public opinion regarding family life, to make people want advice so a demand would be created for proper legislation.

Conference Ends Today

Another section, headed by Miss Winifred Hazen, consultant on family life education, Utah State Department of Public Instruction, explored the question of Government leadership through research and advice in the field of family life. The section felt that active participation in community life was essential in giving parents a sense of adequacy needed, in turn, to provide emotional security and sound guidance to children.

The conference will end at noon today after a plenary session at Lisner Auditorium. Eric A. Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association and conference chairman, will preside and Dr. Margaret Mead, associate curator of ethnology, American Museum of Natural History, will act as moderator.

Embargo on Freight Is Started

able in the East and could be trucked to town. About 75 per cent of Washington's citrus fruit comes by train.

Poultry dealers foresaw no shortage in their line, because most Washington poultry is of local origin. But they do anticipate poultry prices would rise with meat in short supply.

Danzansky said that in case of a rail strike, local merchants would serve hospitals and institutions first and would probably start some form of voluntary rationing to retailers.

Milk presents no problem for Washington. Virtually all of it comes by highway.

With rail passenger traffic at a standstill, airplanes and buses would doubtless experience the same rush they had during the two-day railroad strike of two years ago.

The National Association of Retail Grocers said there were ample food supplies in most sections of the country to ward off hunger for one to two months.

The United States Postoffice, dependent in large measure on the railroads, made plans as early as February to meet a strike, it was learned yesterday. A high Post Office official said instructions went out at that time to all field superintendents in surface postal transport, so that each now knows exactly where he can obtain trucks for hire and in what numbers.

At Cincinnati, railway mail officials said the Army would issue an order "putting their facilities at our disposal." Col. R. J. McBride, Deputy Chief of Staff to the commanding general of the Military District of Washington, said no such offer had been made here, adding that he assumed the Army will fill a request for trucks in an emergency."

The railroads which announced embargoes affecting Washington are the Atlantic Coast Line, Seaboard Airline, both of which ship as far as Richmond, then transfer to the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac; the Southern, Baltimore & Ohio and Chesapeake & Ohio.

The Pennsylvania Railroad said that acceptance of freight will be discontinued at time of strike or earlier by appropriate embargoes.

David Bruce Is Given High Post in ECA

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

David K. E. Bruce resigned as Assistant Secretary of Commerce yesterday and later was named an assistant to W. Averell Harriman, roving ambassador of the Economic Cooperation Administration.

He is expected to be chief of the ECA mission to France.

Bruce, whose resignation was accepted by President Truman yesterday, is a cousin of Howard Bruce of Baltimore, who was sworn in late yesterday as deputy administrator of ECA under Paul G. Hoffman. Hoffman was chosen by President Truman to administer the $5,300,000,000 European Recovery Program.

Harriman is scheduled to depart Sunday on a hurry-up visit to Paris to meet with representatives of 16 European countries participating in the recovery program. He will return here in 10 days before going back to Europe to set up permanent headquarters.

Meanwhile, two more countries, Sweden and Luxembourg, qualified for aid under the ECA program. Shipments exceeding four million dollars were approved yesterday for four others, Denmark, Austria, Greece and the Netherlands. The total of aid already started is now more than 110 millions.

So far 12 of the 16 European countries have qualified for aid by filing "letters of intent" to participate fully in the program. China also has qualified and will start receiving aid under her portion of the program soon.

Still to file are Portugal, Switzerland, Turkey and Greece, although the latter is receiving emergency aid pending her filing. Western Germany also will be represented by a letter as soon as details can be worked out between ECA authorities and occupation officials.

Food will get top priority in the early operations of ECA, Dr. Dennis A. FitzGerald, chief of the food division, said yesterday. The recovery program, he added, must begin with food in order to make the next step to increased production abroad.

"What the Ruhr coal miner needs," FitzGerald explained, "is not mine props or picks and shovels so much as the food that will enable him to dig coal." For the first 90 days, he said, food shipments will be limited largely to cereals, fats and oils and similar essentials. Later it is planned to add crops now in surplus, such as raisins and dried or frozen eggs.

Yesterday ECA Administrator Paul G. Hoffman met with three newspaper industry representatives to talk about the newsprint situation.

Among those who breakfasted with him were William Chandler of Scripps-Howard, Cranston Williams, secretary of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, and Franklin Shurz of the South Bend (Ind.) Tribune.

Hoffman has ordered a full investigation by his staff of Britain's proposed newsprint imports from Canada and Newfoundland, where United States publishers get most of their paper.

The investigation was ordered after Representative Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio), chairman of a Special House Newsprint Committee, charged that ECA planned to send 288,000 tons of Canadian newsprint to Europe. Brown, a publisher, told Hoffman this would create "chaos" in the publishing industry.

Accompanying Harriman Sunday will be Ambrose Chambers of the law firm of Chambers and Jackson, New York City, and president of American Aid to France.

CED Favors Trade Plan

The committee for Economic Development, an organization of businessmen, yesterday urged continuation of the Nation's reciprocal trade program. It said this would strengthen the causes of freedom and peace.

The CED statement was submitted to a House Ways and Means Subcommittee, now considering a bill to extend life of the program. the Reciprocal Trade Act expires June 12, unless it is renewed. The CED urged a 3-year extension "without weakening amendments."

Under the act, the State Department is permitted to reduce America's tariffs if other nations in trade pacts, lower their trade barriers.

Churchill Asks For Assembly Of Europe

The Hague, The Netherlands, May 7 (AP).—Winston Churchill today urged immediate formation of a United European Assembly. He asked European nations to sacrifice some measure of national sovereignty to permit eventual establishment of a federation as part of a larger world government based on the main grouping of mankind.

Churchill addressed 600 members of a 22-nation "congress of Europe" in a city decorated with a new flag for the proposed European federation. The flag, a large red E on a white background, was designed by Duncan Sandys, son-in-law of Churchill.

National hatreds of the past must be forgotten so the Continent can live in peace, Churchill said.

Resolution on Assembly

"We aim at the eventual participation of all peoples throughout the Continent whose society and way of life are not in discord with the charter of human rights and sincere expression of free democracy," Churchill said. "We welcome any country where the people own the government, and not the government the people."

The delegates have before them a resolution urging the establishment of a European assembly. Until elections could be held, each parliament of Europe would appoint representatives to the assembly.

The assembly would advise an emergency council. The latter would be charged with directing joint action for economic recovery and military defense. The council also would plan the Federation of Europe. Also before the forum is a resolution for creation of a supreme tribunal to protect fundamental democratic rights.

Declaring such a council would conflict with the United Nations, Churchill reiterated it would be subordinate but necessary part of the world organization."

He foresaw a world organization with these three "august but subordinate" regional councils:

1. The Soviet Union.
2. The Council of Europe, including Britain joined with her Empire and Commonwealth.
3. The Western Hemisphere.

"I was anxious at first lest the United States of America should view with hostility the idea of a United States of Europe," Churchill said. "But I rejoice that the great republic in its era of world leadership has risen far above such moods."

Churchill said the West is grieved and perplexed by the attitude of the Soviet Union, "without whose active aid the world organization cannot function, nor the shadow of war be lifted."

Exiles Present

Delegates from all the 16 European nations in the Marshall Plan were present, in addition to exiled leaders from Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Romania and Finland, and delegates from the Saar Valley, the French occupation zone of Germany and from Spain. The "Congress" has no governmental sponsorship.

Churchill expressed the hope the five European states now associated in close economic and military relationship will soon be joined by the peoples of Scandinavi, of the Iberian Peninsula, as well as by Italy.

"Europe has only to arise and stand in her own majesty, faithfulness and virtue, to confront all forms of tyranny, ancient or modern, Nazi or Communist, with forces which are unconquerable, and which if asserted in good time, might never be challenged again . . ." he declared.

Paul Ramadier, former Socialist Premier of France, said Europe's choice is between union or death.

U. N. May End Atomic Talks

lar session in Paris next September.

Thus, the world is being left to an atomic armaments race, limited only by the moral force of the pledges against war and aggression in the U. N. Charter. Each nation will be left to the protection of its own military intelligence. The United States, for one, is already concentrating on producing atomic weapons, and atomic development for peace becomes subordinate.

So far as could be learned, there are no present plans for negotiations outside "the commission level."

The new move came after practical work had been dropped on March 30 on the majority plan in control committee, and on April 5 on the Soviet proposals in working committee. The three-power statement recalled how the Soviet Union from the first had objected that the majority plan for internationalizing atomic development would infringe national sovereignty. It related how the commission sidetracked political issues to study out the technical needs.

But even technical findings failed to budge the Soviet Union, the statement said. Politically and technically, it said, no important region can be left out of an atomic control—and Soviet participation would be indispensable.

Union Shop

Bills have been introduced in both House and Senate to repeal the union shop election clause of the Taft-Hartley Act which provides that a union shop contract, to be valid, must be approved by a majority of the employes in the bargaining unit concerned. In 99 per cent of the elections held by the NLRB up to the end of March a majority voted for the union shop. Moreover, on the average, almost 95 per cent of those eligible to vote participated in the elections. Thus the belief entertained in some quarters that union shop contracts had been foisted on many employes against their will as an alternative to loss of jobs appears to be unfounded. Under the circumstances a strong case can be made out for relieving the regional offices of the National Labor Relations Board from the costly and time-consuming task of conducting union shop elections.

Chairman Herzog of the NLRB stated recently that since the Taft-Hartley Act came into effect 18,600 new cases have poured into the regional offices, over 6000 of them being received in March alone. More than three fourths of the incoming cases still involve requests for elections to authorize the union shop. And the board expects 30,000 more petitions for union shop elections to be filed in the coming fiscal year, although the number is expected to drop sharply thereafter. Elimination of union shop election requirements would, therefore, not only save the Government very large amounts of money, but also would relieve the pressure on officials who are at the present time buried under a mass of unfinished business. They would, as a result, have an opportunity to deal more expeditiously with the many difficult problems of interpretation and administration that arise under other provisions of the new labor law.

Security In A Hurry

What is the basic assumption on which the country is to operate with respect to the international crisis? If the accepted theory, to which we subscribe, is that this is still a cold war, measures short of military action should be our prime reliance, and the main military backing should be in readiness potential. That means, of course, an increase in military strength sufficient to support diplomatic policy now; but beyond that it means concentration on intelligence and on research and on developing plant capacity that can be readily impressed in an emergency without at present placing the entire economy on a war footing.

If, on the other hand, the considered estimate is that we are in the initial stages of a shooting war, then time is a-wasting. What is then needed is not only the draft and allied measures important in the cold war, but also as many air groups as the country can build as well as industrial conscription and manpower legislation. In such an event controls are vital, for the checkbook alone cannot produce needed electric power or the aluminum and components that go into airplanes. The selective service legislation now in the House, to be sure, contains some preferential controls over industry, and belatedly but wisely the Administration has put a stop to the sale of surplus defense plants with rather surprising results. However, if we actually face a war, far more direction is necessary.

How much expenditure can the civilian economy stand? If, in the opinion of qualified leaders, the shooting war is inevitable, then of course this question is academic, for the entire economy must be committed. But if a more dispassionate judgment holds that measures short of war are the requirement, then the effect of the defense program upon the national stability must be considered. Clearly uncontrolled military outlays could bring on the economic collapse the Communist soothsayers have predicted. The question is not one of postponing what is demonstrably necessary, but rather of assessing national abilities with a view to maintaining the healthy economy important to leadership of the democratic world.

No one with the interest of the country at heart wants an impotent Air Force or a second-rate defense establishment. What the people can rightfully ask is that members of Congress not be stampeded by such labels as "mothball" and that they take not just one but all factors into account in making up their minds. The air group votes on Capitol Hill can hardly be considered in this category, regardless of the convincing case that can be made for 70 groups on purely military grounds. There can be no question about the sincerity of purpose of most of the legislators who have chosen the present course so overwhelmingly. But sincerity of purpose is not enough unless it is tempered with the sane, broad view essential in discharging so grave a responsibility.

This broad view was absent, we suggest, in the Senate vote of 74-2 for the 70-group Air Force. The debate was all too brief. It showed a Senate with its mind already made up by hysteria. This seems to have been the feeling of Senator Lodge, who, pointing to the error of burdening our industry with obsolescence, asserted, "If we increase appropriations every time we get angry, we can, over a period of years, bleed ourselves to death." Yet even Senator Lodge couldn't keep off the bandwagon.

Atom Politics

It is peculiarly disappointing to find Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg lending his respected support to those who would amend the Atomic Energy Act in the interest of political expediency. And it is bewildering to find him grounding this support on the protestation that "I want no part of 'politics' in respect to the commission's personnel." What part other than politics could have prompted the earlier Republican scheme to limit extension of the AEC appointments to a single year or Senator Taft's egregious assertion that it would be only fair to let a new President make the full-term appointments? All that can be said for the present proposal to extend the tenure of the incumbent commissioners for two years instead of one is that it covers political nudity with a fig leaf scarcely capable of sparing its sponsors their blushes.

No one—save, perhaps, himself—can forget the great role played by Senator Vandenberg in the Senate fight over the confirmation of the atomic energy commissioners. That confirmation climaxed a cruel and exhaustive inquiry into their qualifications. The judgment of these men expressed by Senator Vandenberg and indorsed by a majority of his colleagues has been fully vindicated by their performance in office during the past year and a half. Senators who entertain any doubts respecting their competence and character are justified in voting against their confirmation for the regular terms provided for in the Atomic Energy Act; but then in good conscience, of course, these Senators would be obliged to vote against confirming them for two years or even two days. Conversely, Senators willing to entrust the Nation's vital atomic energy program to these men for two years can have no justification for refusing to confirm them for the regular terms prescibed by a statute of their own creation.

The way to get the Atomic Energy Commission entirely out of politics, which is what Senator Vandenberg says he desires, is to put it as quickly as possible on a permanent basis so that the terms of its members will expire not concurrently but at intervals. Obviously, this was the intent of Congress in providing that the initial terms of service should differ in length. So long as the tenure of the commissioners remains, as it is now, tentative, they will be subject to political pressure and frustrated in the initiation of long-range policies. As the President observed, tentative appointments "would restore the pall of uncertainty which surrounded the development of this country's atomic energy program from the Japanese surrender until the spring of 1947, when the present commission was confirmed." This is precisely what the country can least afford at a time when defense must be one of its paramount considerations. The need today—and we venture the hope that Senator Vandenberg will still recognize it—is to give the direction of atomic affairs the continuity that can come only through complete divorcement from politics.

Official Secrets

Congressman Clare Hoffman deserves credit for his promise to withdraw a provision which would have penalized newspapermen from his bill designed to force the executive branch of the Government to surrender its confidential files to the legislative branch. At the same time, through the mere introduction of this provision, Mr. Hoffman must also be credited with having, no doubt quite unintentionally, reduced his whole bill to its essential absurdity. For he has now made even more clear what the House Committee on Un-American Activities has so often previously demonstrated, that confidential material in the hands of a congressional committee is in grave danger of ceasing to be confidential. The point becomes even more apparent when one recalls that the proximate cause of Mr. Hoffman's present proposal is the refusal of the President to turn over an FBI report on Dr. Edward U. Condon, parts of which the Committee on Un-American Activities, without any authorization at all, made public some weeks ago.

It is improbable that penalties—even the threat of a term in jail—will restrain members of congressional committees from divulging confidential information. And in any case the disciplining of their indiscretions should be in the hands of the Congress itself, rather than the courts. Representative Thomas, for example, ought to be roundly censured by the House of Representatives—or, better still, relieved of his committee chairmanship—for disclosing FBI material to which he should never even have had access in the first place. But if Congress will not restrain him, laws are unlikely to do so. As for compelling the President to give congressional committees material submitted to him in confidence—it seems about as reasonable as compelling congressional committees to divulge what they discuss in their closed, or executive, sessions.

Mr. Truman's Speeches

President Truman's new technique in addressing the people was illustrated by his extemporaneous speech before the National Conference on Family Life. He spoke with complete lack of formality and undoubtedly succeeded in communicating his ideas to the audience in a personal manner. That sort of address certainly holds his listeners more effectively than the reading of a set speech which has been prepared and combed over carefully by presidential advisers. It is said that the President intends to employ this new technique when he makes his tour of the West.

Many who have heard one of the President's informal, off-the-cuff speeches believe that he has found a way of enhancing his prestige in the eyes of the public. In some measure we have no doubt that this is true. The best talk of this sort that has come to our attention was at the dinner of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, where Mr. Truman spoke off the record about the relations between the United States and Russia. Such a talk by the President of the United States in the existing tense atmosphere was certain to be vital and interesting. Contributing also to its success was the fact that the President spoke with conviction and feeling out of a background of personal experience.

It does not follow, however, that the President will be able so to speak authoritatively on many other subjects that have made less demand upon his personal attention. Nor does it follow that homely talk which may impress an audience within the sound of the President's voice will carry an impact on the much larger audience that is likely to see the speech in the press the following day. The President's comments on Thursday, for example, vividly conveyed to his listeners the idea that the United States is acutely in need of more housing. But it is not particularly impressive to read in the verbatim reproduction of his speech that "our housing shortage is almost a fatal one," or that the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill passed the Senate "in wonderful form."

Mr. Truman cannot get away from the fact that his words become those of the President of the United States. When the President speaks, something more than an off-the-cuff opinion or remark is expected, unless he is talking informally and off the record for a small group. Much as we applaud the President's courage and flexibility in experimenting with a new technique, therefore, we cannot suppress the hope that when he speaks for the whole Nation or the whole world to hear the advantages of weighing his words will not be overlooked.

Scholar's Tenure

The University of New Mexico has achieved a distinction recently of a sort for which State institutions, especially in the South and Southwest, have too often been distinguished of late. It has fired its president in much the same manner that it might have fired one of its cleaning women or messenger boys. The president, Dr. John Philip Wernette, left an associate professorship at Harvard to go to New Mexico in 1945. Under his administration, the university grew signally in enrollment, physical plant, faculty and scholastic standing. Outstanding educators have testified to his professional competence. But Dr. Wernette was not able to get along with a politically appointed board of regents.

It may be that he was impolitic in dealing with the regents. Scholars are not always diplomats. In the great American institutions of learning, of course, it is the regents who are expected to be politic in dealing with the scholars. And perhaps it is precisely the reversal of this order in places like New Mexico and the University of Texas, where President Homer T. Rainey was ousted a few years ago because he refused to toe the mark set for him by his regents, that makes them so barren scholastically.

The loss in this case will certainly be New Mexico's. The situation was summed up Succinctly by the student newspaper, Lobo: "If something isn't done about our so-called 'board of regents,' our diplomas will be scholastically worth about as much as Confederate money." Dr. Wernette will go on to freer fields. Other educators of high caliber are likely to shun a school in which success seems to depend upon docility. The lesson of this is quite clear—a lesson which the great universities, State and privately endowed alike, learned long ago—that education must be left to educators who, if they are to fulfill the real functions of a university, must be accorded confidence and freedom along with responsibility.

Consumer Credit

In March the total volume of outstanding consumer credit reached a record high point of 13.4 billion dollars—more than 3 billion dollars above the level of March a year ago. This sharp advance, reflecting a postwar upward trend that was briefly and slightly reversed in the first two months of this year, emphasizes the need for restoration of consumer credit controls as urged by M. S. Szymczak of the Federal Reserve Board of Governors. Addressing the Alabama Bankers Association Mr. Szymczak stated that regulation of down payments and maturities in the field of consumer installment credit would "help to dampen consumer demand, especially for durable goods." By curbing consumer expenditures it would also reduce competition for basic materials and manpower on which the national defense and foreign aid programs must rely heavily. And as a final incidental argument in favor of controls, a reduction of buying on the installment plan would encourage more saving and provide another weapon for fighting inflation.

Korean Rioters

Several misleading and incorrect statements in a letter in your May 1 issue dealing with the "Kobe-Osaka Dispute" call for correction.

The difficulties encountered by Koreans in Japan are a fact, but likewise is it true that each Korean was given an opportunity to be transported back to his homeland free, within recent months. Therefore, those Koreans now in Japan are there of their own free will and not as forced labor; they chose to live in Japan rather than face an uncertain future under "patriots" in Korea.

Regulations of the Japanese government that schools (including Korean) shall be educational institutions rather than propaganda organizations is sensible. Actually, very few of the so-called Korean "schools" were closed for lack of compliance. Inasmuch as those rioters who were arrested by American MP's have not been brought to trial, how can one living at this great distance declare so assuredly that communism had little to do with the uprising?

As for the Koreans not being blackmarketeers, scores of occupation personnel have reported firsthand knowledge that many Koreans are heavily engaged in that nefarious trade . . .

The suggestion that Koreans in Japan should be given Allied status is ridiculous and impossible to implement . . .

While on the subject of Korea, let me comment on the May 2 article by Mr. Robert T. Oliver. It is more interestingly than factually written. The idolizing of long-absentee patriot Syngman Rhee's opportunistic political philosophy makes an unconvincing, long drawn out ending to the piece.

Let your readers have facts, not political pablum, particularly as regards matters upon which an American not well acquainted with the Orient has little or no means of cross checking.

Palestine Pledge

There can be no peace without good faith. In his notable memoirs, Winston Churchill blames the broken obligations of France to defend Czechoslovakia, with British acquiescence, for the "unnecessary" World War II. His tragic admission points the way to avoid World War III.

There is but one simple issue in the Palestine problem. That issue is the keeping of a solemn pledge.

The promise which makes Palestine a problem has not been fulfilled. And if it be not fulfilled what confidence can be placed in others to follow? Britain and the United States cannot continue to indict other nations for broken promises unless they themselves stand clean.

The matter is not complicated. The British government for its own reasons, and free from duress of any kind, promised the Jews of the world a homeland in Palestine. The United States underwrote that commitment.

To implement its undertaking, Britain, induced the League of Nations to appoint her the mandatory authority over the newly acquired land. There was no other reason for the mandate—except that it provided an excuse for Britain holding possession. That Britain took her responsibility lightly is proven by her present unilateral abandonment of the mandate, the promise, and all.

But Britain stands charged with a more grievous fault. With our tacit consent she deliberately prevented the Jews, themselves, from making Palestine their homeland. Her pretense was that it would interfere with Arab civil rights. Without trying, how could she know? No evidence of such intention exists.

A few days remain for Britain and the United States to redeem their honor. The pledge can still be kept. ALBERT A. VOLK.

Storing Grain

Albert S. Goss, master of the National Grange, stated in Denver recently, "When Europe's grain markets are filled in two or three years a crash will come unless something is done." He wants a Federal Farm Commission to push surpluses and spare the short commodities.

To my way of thinking, that plan is not concrete enough. I know if the Government will acquire elevators and say to everybody, "Bring on your surpluses of wheat and corn—Uncle Sam will pay a set price for certain grades; this is to be a permanent thing; anyone can get wheat and corn from the elevator at the same price, plus a few cents per bushel for overhead, providing Uncle Sam has the grain in the elevator," this will solve and take care of any business slump.

This pegging the prices of wheat and corn will peg the prices automatically of other farm commodities; it will peg the prices of meats, butter, poultry and dairy products; it will peg the purchasing power of the dollar. Wheat and corn can be dehydrated and kept indefinitely, with a little attention.

Training For Democracy

Ysabel Rennie's transparent scheme, set forth in her letter of May 4, to have our Government "appropriate a few millions a year to give an education to the young democrats of Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and the rest of the countries behind the iron curtain" is typical of the present reactionary mentality which is doing its best to stir up misunderstanding with the Soviet Union and the new democracies of eastern Europe.

Her language betrays very clearly what is in her mind, train a group of "democratic"—i. e. anti-Communist, leaders to take over the governments of these countries, presumably after the victorious American legions "liberated" them.

For Miss Rennie's information, a democratic leadership is now being very adequately trained in Czechoslovakia and the other countries she mentions. Any student who is a real democrat, instead of a stooge for the discredited reactionaries who would like to return to power, will be educated for leadership. The peoples of eastern Europe have overwhelmingly repudiated the capitalism that calls itself democracy. Why can't they be left alone to work out their political future in peace?

The "young students who face despair at home" are a figment of her fertile imagination. Democratic students are solidly behind their governments and would refuse with indignation the suggestion that they have to come to the United States for education in democracy. What she's talking about is a school for gauleiters. Why not call things by their right name? V. R. MEINER.
Washington.

Crippling Social Security Cuts

On April 29 the House of Representatives drastically slashed the appropriations request of the Social Security Administration for next year. In short, Commissioner Altmeyer's immediate staff is cut by two thirds, his public informational and research staffs by more than half, and the sum needed for grants to States for USES and unemployment insurance are reduced by 22 million dollars. But worse, the House's action would (1) cut off one integral social security activity — unemployment compensation — from the Social Security Administration and (2) deprive the commissioner of the present regional offices through which day to day management is now affected.

The cut in funds and the unprecedented administrative reorganization steps legislated by the House, under a suspension of the rules, endanger the present balanced development of social security. They will cut this country's social security program into four unrelated and competing segments. They will force each segment—old age insurance, the assistances, the children's services, and employment security—to build up supporting pressure groups and to vie with one another for appropriations. There is need for a focus for social security within the Federal Security Agency. Yet, if the House action is not corrected in the Senate, this country's social security program will not have any cohesive and effective direction.

The Social Security Administration has from its beginning as the Social Security Board been acclaimed as a model public agency. It has a reputation for nonpolitical, efficient administration of old-age and survivors insurance, unemployment insurance, public assistance, and more recently, health and welfare services for mothers and children. It has succeeded in balancing the claims for security of the aged, widowed, orphaned and unemployed in an integrated social security program.

There are different views as to ways and means of extending social security programs, but informed observers of social security will agree that the achievement of social security in this country should not be handicapped by an appropriation which is not only insufficient but crippling in the manner in which it disorganizes a successful administration.

We earnestly hope that The Washington Post will make clear the consequences of the drastic action of the House of Representatives. We do not ask that any funds be appropriated which are not essential for economical administration. But we do urge that no action be countenanced which will make ineffective or impossible the continued integrated operation under the Social Security Administration of all basic efforts to provide social security.

New Skirmish In An Old War

By Malvina Lindsay

Men Versus Women

THE WAR between the sexes, always latent, seems now to be having one of its periodic flare-ups. Men's forces in Congress have grabbed the offensive in a recent series of moves and so far are holding it. These moves have included:

The Gearhart coup by which women's groups supporting the renewal of legislation for reciprocal trade agreements have been shut out of the closed hearings conducted by the House Ways and Means Subcommittee, of which Representative Bertrand W. Gearhart is chairman.

The Wac-Wave rear guard action by which a House bill shunted women of the armed services into a reserve corps after a Senate bill giving them regular status had been passed unanimously.

A reported effort in the Senate to block via the closed hearing the reappointment of Judge Mariam L. Harron, only woman on the 16-member Court of Tax Appeals, who in her 12 years of service has never had a decision reversed by the Supreme Court.

Also for some time women have been meeting a sort of freeze-out in politics and public affairs, especially in places where policy-making has been involved. Just how far this has gone—or whether it has been reversed—will be revealed at the national party conventions in the number of delegates women have and the representation they are given on important committees.

WHAT IS back of this recent outbreak of the age-old man-woman tug of war? For one thing, it may be a reaction to the postwar habit of women to advance to new economic frontiers. As Representative Joseph R. Bryson said in his plea for making women a regular part of the armed services, "war is inevitably a revolutionary force in the life of women."

Men's uneasiness over this is heightened, since this postwar period happens to coincide with a swing of the pendulum toward conservatism in social and political attitudes. There is widespread fear of change—oddly, more on the part of men than of women—and much longing, in substantial circles at least, for the days of Coolidge and even McKinley. Men of the old order are in the saddle in many places. They would like to think women were at home knitting, not trying to mix into the masculine world of tariffs and defense.

One of Chairman Gearhart's excuses for closing the tariff legislation hearings revealed this attitude. His opposition to "listening to spokesmen for a bunch of ladies' sewing societies reading statements . . . prepared by the State Department" not only drew a volley of telegrams to Republican leaders, but also alerted many women to the fact that the presuffrage era had not been left behind.

It also revealed the growing masculine concern over the direct political action and lobbying activities of powerful women's groups and their tendency to line up with progressive economic and social forces. Many high tariff exponents have not forgotten what an effective fight national women's organizations put up for the trade agreements the last time the legislation was before Congress.

SIMILAR echoes of the past came from the House debate over the status of women in the armed services. There were the same pompous generalities, the same flowery tributes that were the stock in trade of antisuffrage orators. There was also revealed the same latent fear of women taking too much power—in this case commissions and prestige—a fear now reinforced by the fact that they exceed men in numbers and voting strength and have gotten hold of the moneybags. The strength of this feeling was shown when Representative Dewey Short pointed out that the House committee had to be "realistic," that if the Reserve Corps provision had not been put in, the bill could never have been gotten out of the Rules Committee.

So widespread has this sex war skirmishing extended that psychologists and sociologists have been looking into it. Hence we hear increasingly of gynophobia, the exaggerated fear of the power of women, a feeling said to be engendered in some men because they have had feminine bosses from the cradle up.

We also hear of neo-antifeminism, a growing movement among writers and speakers to convince women that careers and interests outside the physical walls of the home are the cause of their frustrations and neuroses, and that they would be happier if they went back to their kitchens as well as their "sewing societies."

But it is not likely that this counter-revolutionary movement in any of its phases will succeed. For the big trouble is that the economy is not headed toward giving women "sewing society" lives.

More Covenants

The Supreme Court has spoken with regard to covenants on property so that any man of any race or creed can buy real property if it is for sale and he has the money to pay therefor. With this controlling decision, how about covenanted pews in churches? Must certain people sit in the rear pews as in the rear seats in Jim Crow transportation systems? If neighbors cease to be segregated why should churches and schools operate on a Jim Crow basis?

As a graduate of the first nonsegregated school in this area, why can I not join the local chapter of the American Association of University Women, to which my degree entitles me? Will it require a higher Federal court to decide this Jim Crow question?

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Vandenberg Backstage

BEFORE the Eightieth Congress winds up and goes home, one more piece of major foreign-policy legislation seems certain to be adopted. It will take the form of a resolution establishing the relationship between this country and the new Western European Union.

Childs

The final form of the resolution, which may be even broader in scope than this suggests, depends largely on one man. That man is Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. A master strategist, Vandenberg will follow his own sense of timing in maneuvering the all-important declaration of policy through Congress.

The president of the Senate is looking these days like the canary that swallowed the cat. He has an innocent, genial smile for all visitors. As in the past, every reference to his possible nomination for President is brushed aside good-naturedly.

The Senator from Michigan has good reason to look pleased. The long, difficult business of the European Recovery Program ended in complete triumph. Paul Hoffman, who was Vandenberg's choice for Recovery Administrator, is demonstrating his capacity to put together an effective team to do the stupendous job.

CURRENTLY, in both Senate and House, there is a drive to make over the United Nations. This drive comes from two directions.

One source is the deep idealism of those, both in and out of Congress, who believe that the U. N. must be refashioned in such a way that the veto power is reduced or abolished and the sovereignty or world government affirmed, at least in part.

The idealists ar willing to bring this about even though it should mean the withdrawal of the Soviet Union and her satellites. A second source of support for the drive to make over U. N. is the fear and hostility of those who hope that such a move will force Russia out of the Congress of Nations.

No hard and fast line between these two groups can be drawn, so complicated are motives in this era of uncertainty. But when Secretary of State George C. Marshall appeared before the House Foreign Affairs Committee he addressed himself to both groups. In clear and forceful language Marshall expressed his conviction that such a move would pave the way to war rather than peace. The end result of driving Russia out of the U. N. would almost inevitably move toward armed conflict.

What is more, although Marshall did not express it, is the concern that many western European nations would decline to become part of an American alliance in the event of such a split. Fear would keep them from joining up on "our side."

SENATOR VANDENBERG is in general agreement with the views expressed by Marshall. The two have an excellent working relationship. It was cemented at the conference in Brazil last year when Marshall entrusted to Vandenberg the major back-stage negotiations. The Senator has deep sympathy with the Secretary of State for some of the pounding he has taken, unjustly in Vandenberg's belief.

The resolution that is finally voted upon on the Senate floor is likely to be close to Marshall's own thinking. It will be copper-riveted, just as was the ERP, to insure the acid test of acceptance.

Vandenberg also has a close working alliance with Chairman Charles A. Eaton of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. Between the two is a strong mutual admiration and friendship.

As he proved when well-meaning but confused members of the House sought to distort ERP, Eaton is no mean strategist. When the smoke of battle cleared away, the bill went to the House floor in almost the same form in which it had come from the Senate. Now 80 years old, Eaton has just won a hot primary contest in his home district in New Jersey.

In spite of the reeling and writhing of election-year politics, the foreign policy that has been shaped during the past six months is in large measure bipartisan. In the day-to-day evolution of this policy, Vandenberg's skillful human engineering contributed more than did any other factor.

Therefore, whether he likes it or not, he looms large before the country in a year of critical decision. The Republican convention cannot ignore the man who has contributed so greatly to unity of purpose and the practical means for achieving that purpose.

FCC Under Probe by House Un-American Activities Group

By The Associated Press

The House Un-American Activities Committee is investigating the Federal Communications Commission.

A committee source let this be known yesterday after a public request by Representative Herbert (D., La.) for an inquiry to determine whether the FCC is "part of a Red network."

Herbert, a member of the Un-American Activities Committee, made his request to that group and to the House Commerce Committee, which handles legislation dealing with the commission.

"We have had the FCC under investigation quietly for some time," an Un-American Activities committee informant said.

Herbert said "a cloud has been cast over the FCC" because it granted five radio permits to Edward Lamb of Toledo.

Previously, Herbert had told the House that Lamb has "expansive records of association with the Communist Party in America, front organizations, and fellow travelers." He referred to Lamb as "a man saturated and drenched in Communist writing, associations and affiliations.

Lamb, saying "I have denied many times being a Communist," called Herbert's speech "a vulgar smear attack." FCC Chairman Wayne Coy said the agency investigated and found no information to support a charge that Lamb was a Communist.

In a letter to Chairman Wolverton (R., N. J.) of the Commerce Committee, Herbert said he understood the committee had a file "on the unusual diligence of the Federal Communications Commission in favoring particularly those applicants who walk arm in arm with fellow travelers of the Communist Party."

The Un-American Activities Committee plans to take no public action on Herbert's request until after an anti-Communist bill it is sponsoring clears the House.

Methodists Seek to Avert Russian War

Boston, July 7 (AP).—The Methodist General Conference today adopted a peace resolution recommending efforts to improve relations with Russia and prevent war.

It was adopted with only six dissenting votes.

Opposition came mainly from a bloc of Southern delegates who opposed a section declaring the church's opposition to peacetime universal military training.

The report calls for action to prevent war by nearly 100 million Methodist Church members in this country and overseas. They also are charged to make every effort "to change the prevailing mood which we believe conducive to war."

Another action today was the election of J. Ernest Wilkins, 50-year-old Chicago Negro attorney, to the church's judicial council. He is the first of his race to join the nine-man body, the denomination's "supreme court."

U. S. Funds for Catholic Schools Are Opposed

Atlanta, May 7 (AP).—The American Council of Christian Churches, a Protestant group, today adopted a resolution opposing use of Federal funds in support of Roman Catholic parochial schools.

The resolution also urged that Protestants "register constant and strong denunciation against the flagrant discrimination practiced by public news facilities, favoring Romanism to the detriment of other religious groups."

Presbyterian Church Reunion Plan Ready

Cincinnati, May 7 (AP).—A plan providing for the reunion of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America and the Presbyterian Church in the United States (Southern) was completed here today.

It will be submitted to the general assemblies of the two churches at their respective meetings on May 27.

Scientists Hit Move to Cut AEC Terms

Warnings that failure of Congress to confirm the nominations of members of the Atomic Energy Commission for full terms would impair atomic research were contained in telegrams from a group of scientists, made public yesterday by Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.).

President Truman has nominated David E. Lilienthal, chairman of the commission, for a five-year term and four other members for terms ranging from one to four years.

Various Republicans have objected that the five-year tenure would run beyond the term of the next President, and bills have been introduced in both Houses to extend the present terms of the commission members for two years. Passage of these bills would avert a showdown at present over confirmation of the nominations for regular terms.

Dr. Enrico Fermi of the University of Chicago wired that he believed that "lack of confirmation of Lilienthal would seriously disrupt" work on atomic energy development.

The executive committee of the Association of Los Alamos Scientists expressed "deep concern" over the two-year extension bills, called them a political maneuver and said that they could only "serve to critically endanger our national security and atomic energy development."

G. W. Beadle of the California Institute of Technology, told Senator McMahon that controversy over the nominations would undermine confidence in the Nation's atomic energy program.

Other telegrams came from Prof. Robert F. Loeb of Columbia University, Philip Drinker of Harvard University, J. H. Manley of the Los Alamos Laboratory, Cyril Stanley Smith of the University of Chicago, and F. W. Loomis of the University of Illinois.

Marshall's Realism

By Ernest Lindley

Difficulties In A Charter Change

SECRETARY of State Marshall's main arguments against the various proposals for radical changes in the United Nations Charter may be summed up under two points:

1. The proposals, under present circumstances, would not help to prevent aggression.

2. If pressed, they probably would destroy the present United Nations organization.

Lindley

Most of the proposals fix upon the big power "veto" on the Security Council as the principal barrier to the use of the United Nations for its primary purpose of preventing or punishing aggression. Realistically, that is not the case. The "veto" does not prevent the use of collective force to deal with aggression or the threat of aggression.

Article 51 of the Charter expressly recognizes the right of individual and collective self-defense. Articles 52, 53 and 54 provide for regional arrangements within the United Nations. Both the Pan-American collective defense pact signed at Rio last year and the Western Union pact signed at Brussels recently are within the U. N. Charter. The Western Union pact can be expanded. It can be converted into a North Atlantic pact. A similar pact could be entered into by the nations of the eastern Mediterranean and Middle East.

INDEED, under Article 51, probably any number of nations, regardless of their geographical distribution, could bind themselves to resist or repeal aggression. And they could proceed to make detailed military arrangements for carrying out their pledge.

The Security Council big power "veto" is therefore not a barrier to the organization and use of collective force to deal with an aggressor. It is a barrier only to the use of the Security Council for these purposes and for the pacific settlement of disputes.

The Soviet Union obviously will not consent to amendment of the Charter in the direction proposed. Many who wish to revise the Charter realize this, but want to go ahead anyway with as many nations as are willing to form a tighter kind of international organization.

SECRETARY MARSHALL is not willing to take the step—not yet, at least. He warns that it would result in the "dispersal of the community of nations, followed by the formation of rival military alliances and isolate groups of states." It would, he holds, "weaken us and expose us to even greater dangers from those who seek domination of other states." This point is arguable. But the fact that Secretary Marshall makes it indicates that he is, at heart, not without hope of bringing about a gradual change in Soviet policy.

His thinking is directed to what he regards as a "fundamental task"—"to dispel the misconceptions of the Soviet leaders and to bring about a more realistic view of what is possible and what is impossible in the relationship between the Soviet Union and the world at large." It is to restore an international equilibrium which may eventually permit the U. N. to function in the manner hoped for at San Francisco.

Capital Store Sales Up 9% In 4 Weeks

By S. Oliver Goodman

April gains went a long way toward washing out March disappointments in Washington department store sales, Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond figures revealed last night.

Local sales in the four weeks ended May 1 were 9 per cent higher than in the like 1947 period, the bank reported. However, for the week ended May 1 dollar volume was 2 per cent less than in the same period last year.

Regionally, store sales in the Fifth Federal Reserve District spurted 9 per cent in the week ended May 1 and were up 7 per cent for the four-week period.

Commenting on retail sales trend, Business Week said: "Strongest comeback of the year to date has been in store sales. Disappointment over Easter volume now may be forgotten. Looking back, it seems pretty sure that an early Easter and bad weather were at fault. April results demonstrate this clearly. More seasonable weather sent department store volume up quite briskly."

PAYOFF: The $300,000 in outstanding notes of the Securities Building Corp. are being paid off in full, plus interest, it was announced yesterday. Payment of $131.03 per $100 note will be made by the trust department of National Savings & Trust Co. The notes, dated 1932 and in default on principal and interest for some years, were foreclosed and the building at 729 15th st, nw., was sold at auction for a reported $428,000.

ODD LOTS: A bill has been introduced in the House to raise salaries of members of Securities and Exchange Commission from $10,000 to $15,000 a year. . . American Broadcasting Co., now privately owned, has filed a registration statement for 500,000 shares of common stock to be offered to the public by an underwriting group headed by Dillon, Read & Co. . . Bureau of Labor Statistics reported the wholesale price index dropped 0.6 per cent during the week ended May 1 for the first decline in more than a month . . . Domestic demand for petroleum products will increase 7.4 per cent and export demand will drop 7.1 per cent in the year ended next March 31, the Interstate Oil Compact Commission estimates . . . Frederick C. Dumaine, 82-year-old industrialist, claimed enough voting stock to take over control of New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.

NEW IDEA: Robert R. Young, chairman of Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, is advocating establishment of a pickup service by the parcel post section of the Post-office Department to take over handling of small freight shipments from the Railway Express Agency. He said that the agency, which is owned by railroads, operates uneconomically and "not in the public interest."

FOOD INDEX UP: The Dun & Bradstreet weekly index of 31 foods stood at 6.88 for the week ended May 4, compared with 6.76 a week ago and 6.00 for the corresponding week in 1947. Seventeen commodities advanced and five declined, representing the heaviest upsurge since Feb. 3, when the index stood at 7.14. Among those increasing were all the grains, flour, beef, lard, butter, cheese, coffee, cocoa, cottonseed oil, rice, raisins, steers and lambs. Those losing ground were hams, sugar, milk, potatoes, and hogs.

EARNINGS: Kaiser-Frazer Corp. reported net income of $2,288,000 for the first quarter of 1948, equal to 50 cents a common share, compared with a net loss of $3,236,000 in the same 1947 period. Other income reports follow:

One on the Aisle—

Her Next Might Panic All Asia

By Richard L. Coe

"YES," remarks Jane Cowl, "I did make a picture once and it was terrible, just awful. With the exception of one spot on the globe it flopped everywhere.

"The exception? Japan. Would you believe it, the Japanese thought it was a lovely picture? I was all dressed up in crinolines and the mail poured in from Nippon asking for pictures of me in a 'bath suit.'"

The star of the National's "The First Mrs. Fraser" is going to the Coast this summer for her first fling at films since that little epic Tokyo liked. She's mulling over several parts, and while mulling will be staying with her good friend, Jane Murfin, the script writer.

It's overlooked in a good deal of the pother Miss Cowl's long, distinguished career always evokes, but the two Janes wrote two of the American theater's greatest hits—"Lilac Time" and "Smilin' Through." The Cowl Jane played them both on the stage during World War I. The latter play kept her busy four seasons and has been filmed three times.

Close to her heart, too, is the record she still holds as Juliet. With Rollo Peters as her Romeo, Jane played Juliet across the country for 998 performances, a record she thinks was at least made partly possible by keeping the original New York company and settings intact for the national tour.

But Jane doesn't live in the past, much as her fabulous career may divert an interviewer, who has trouble forgetting that for 40 years the name Jane Cowl has been up in lights. She walked on in a David Belasco production at the age of 14 and a few years later saw her name lit up over the title of "Within the Law" for her performance as that celebrated shoplifter, Mary Turner.

An Old Acquaintance

Today, for instance, Jane would prefer to talk about the new problems of putting on a play, or else about politics. She's of a decided liberal persuasion and thinks it's high time politicians lifted themselves up to statesmanship. What her ideas were before the war we don't know, but it could be that her energetic war years as head of the Stage Door Canteen contributed to her strikingly progressive ideas. Her cheerful greeting, "Make yourselves at home," prompted that riotous take-off of the canteen in "This Is the Army." Alan Manson, who played Jane in the Army show, once told us that he'd been afraid his burlesque of Jane was too biting, but Jane's memories of it are highly complimentary.

So, too, are Jane's recollections of a "feud" that had theater circles happily gossiping while she and Peggy Wood were costarring in "Old Acquaintance."

We dug this up the other day sometime around the salad course, asking her about the billing problems of the John Van Druten comedy. Report always has had it that the two ladies battled to have their names come first in the advertising.

"No Truth in It!"

"Not a word of truth in it," smiled Jane. "Peggy and I were good friends for years before we acted in that one. Why, we'd never have got the laughs on stage if we'd been feuding, as the publicity department hinted. As a matter of fact, we used to take the same taxi home after the theater and it was the taxi driver who finally wrote to a columnist that he used to see us together and hear us talking and that we couldn't possible be having a fight."

Jane's enjoying her week in Washington, even though she described herself as carrying "a broken leg, an abscessed tooth and a case of laryngitis." The leg is almost itself again after a swerving truck cut short last winter's run of her comedy. The tooth and laryngitis gave her opening night trouble. "And when any of my equipment is faulty," says Jane's throaty voice, "I just will overwork my hands."

Next stop for Miss Cowl and "The First Mrs. Fraser": Chicago, for which they're bound after tonight's final curtain at the National.

CIRCUS NEWS: The circus train pulls in Sunday afternoon to avoid tangling with railroad troubles that might otherwise snarl the opening on Tuesday the 18th . . . Out at the Benning stop, the boys will be putting up the big top for the show's first "under canvas" date of the season . . . The date's been moved ahead from the first week in June so the troupe can spend more time on the West Coast . . . And the run has been cut to three days, largely because the District licensing rate has been raised to $500 a day . . . Wednesday the 19th, second of the three days, will be a big-time anniversary, for it was on May 19, 1884, that the first Ringling Brothers show was given at Baribou, Wis. . . . GM to Shut Six Branches for Week

Detroit, May 7 (AP).—General Motors Corp. plans to clean up its one-week steel shortage shutdowns next week with the closing of half a dozen Buick, Oldsmobile and Pontiac branch plants.

The big Chevrolet car division, closed this week, will reopen its 11 assembly plants across the country, along with their body suppliers, on Monday of next week.

The shutdowns, which began on April 26, will have affected approximately 200,000 General Motors production workers, entailing a wage loss estimated by GM President C. E. Wilson at between 12 million and 15 million dollars.

Staging Difficulties Overcome

Poetic 'Legend' at Howard U. Transplants Gynt to Bayous

HOWARD University's Festival of Fine Arts includes the first performances of Owen Dodson's "Bayou Legend." The play will be repeated in Spaulding Hall on the campus tonight, Monday and Tuesday evenings.

The young poet has turned to Ibsen's imaginative drama, "Peer Gynt," for his story, now laid in Lousiana and Panama in the middle of the last century. The immense staging difficulties of producing so sweeping a parable on so small a stage have been ingeniously mastered by the Howard drama department under Anne Cooke.

In the first place, Ibsen's long, rambling, imaginative triumph is not the simplest thing in the world for an audience to follow. Parts of it are sheer poetry, parts of it Norwegian folklore, parts of it are theme (the worst sin is the renunciation of love), parts of it are a loose story line.

Adapting such a poem (which inspired Grieg's music) to our Southern natives is a good idea, for the superstitions of these bayou people can serve Reve's imagination as well as Ibsen's folk legends served Peer. But it is not easy. The poet in Dodson has taken precedence over the story-teller. He has allowed his imagery to get in the way of the story he is telling. There is too much elaboration for the story line.

This is not necessarily fatal. The play could be immensely strengthened by cutting in the first half. The first act is divided in two by an intermission; it could well be effective with fewer events—scenes and characters tend to get in the way of the story line.

Imaginative as are Dodson's word pictures, they, too, cloud what he is trying to say. The second act scenes of the egoist finding that Hell refuses to take him are moving drama, and Dr. Cooke's resourceful use of her small stage is immensely clever.

Walter Hall does a remarkably sustained job as Reve, the Louisiana Peer. It is a tremendously exacting role and the young man has mastered its physical demands. Alice Brantley gives the most moving portrayal of the cast of 40-odd, making the mother's scenes deeply moving. Elise Tillar as Sophie-Louise (Solveig) is charming, and Aileen Clarke's Hethabella is a striking girl.

Overwritten as the drama is, "Bayou Legend" is an interesting and promising idea and reveals that the drama group at Howard is a lively, stimulating group. Its graduates will be bringing fine training to whatever communities they join.

Pre-Election Fights Break Out in Korea

Seoul, Korea (Saturday), May 8 (U.P.)—Widespread preelection violence broke out in southern Korea last night and early today. An election official was murdered here and saboteurs smashed trains, cut power lines and burned a rightist newspaper plant.

Police blamed all the incidents on the Communists, who are pledge to try to upset Monday's elections in the United States-occupied southern zone.

Unknown persons murdered Han Yong Keun, the eleventh election official killed so far.

Saboteurs shut off the electric power in two small towns and cut power lines at two other points.

4-H Rally Postponed

Leesburg, Va., May 7 (Spl.).—The annual Loudoun County 4-H Club Rally Day, scheduled for Saturday, has been indefinitely postponed because of rain.

Tidelands Study Delayed

The Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday put off until May 17 further study of legislation to give the States outright ownership of the oil-rich tidelands.

U. S. Declared Shy of Many Vital Items

United States is lacking scores of strategic items of which there is no domestic source or the domestic supply is too limited.

"The very weapons we boast about and on which we must depend require materials which we do not have within our own borders," said Kenneth D. Johnson, general counsel for the National Security Resources Board, yesterday.

Johnson, who said the resources board was tackling the problems of shortages of critical items, praised pharmacists for their aid in overcoming similar problems during World War II.

He spoke at a luncheon assembly of the American Pharmaceutical Association at the Hotel Mayflower, after dedication of a memorial flagstaff "to all pharmacists who served in the wars of our country." The services were held at the association's headquarters, at 2215 Constitution ave. nw.

More than 200 delegates to the association assembly here attended the ceremonies and luncheon. Donor of the memorial and a flag was Dr. H. A. B. Dunning of Baltimore, past president of the association.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, United States Army deputy chief of staff, principal speaker at the dedication ceremony, also praised the profession for its war aid.

"With other groups within the armed forces," said Gen. Collins, "they (pharmacists) succeeded in maintaining health standards unequaled elsewhere in the world." He said the drugs developed with the aid of the pharmaceutical profession helped to achieve the amazingly high health record of our forces during the war.

Threatening rains forced the holding of the exercises within the association headquarters. The concluding service, the flag-raising, was held at the memorial nearby by representatives of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps.

Arabs Accept Jerusalem Truce

Arab leaders as hinting that though the U. N. was still talking about trusteeship, the U. N. partition plan actually was a fact.

Jewish State Has Arisen

Akram Hamari, a member of the Syrian Parliament, was quoted as saying:

"The battle is all over. The Jewish state has arisen."

Taqi Id-Din Es-Solh, Lebanese, adviser to Secretary General Assam Pasha of the Arab League, was quoted as saying in Aman, Trans-Jordan, the Arab states were not planning to send major forces against Jerusalem.

As the truce agreement was reached, there was a sudden burst of heavy fire in central Jerusalem. The British had opened a machine-gun and six-pounder bombardment against Arab snipers in south Jerusalem. The shelling lasted 15 minutes.

A force of British troops estimated to number 3000 to 4000 boarded the troopship Georgic at Haifa today. Unofficial reports said their destination was England.

The troop embarkation came only a few days after Britain began reinforcing its Palestine army because of the "serious deterioration" of the situation.

Reports from Tel Aviv and from Beirut, in Lebanon, agreed that heavy fighting continued in far northern Palestine.

Britain Urges Successor Unit

negotiations with Jewish and Arab spokesmen in an effort to reach agreement on an emergency mayor for Jerusalem.

It was learned the negotiators were near agreement on an American candidate for the post.

Efforts to pick a mayor for the Holy City focused on the U. N. when the British high commissioner for Palestine, Sir Alan Cunningham, notified the world organization that he could find no suitable candidates in the Holy Land.

An American official who declined to be named said the development was "another example of Britain's shocking lack of cooperation."

The American statement was based on an incorrect U. N. announcement that Sir Alan's message had been forwarded directly by British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin. This conveyed the impression, later corrected, that Britain was giving up completely on the task of finding a Jerusalem mayor.

In midafternoon a British press officer called a hurried news conference to announce the British government still was trying.

Sir Alan asked U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie to try getting Arabs and Jews here to agree on a man for the post. It was understood that such negotiations began immediately.

The American reaction to Sir Alan's message brought to the surface the long-smouldering American resentment at Britain's refusal to cooperate actively with United States State Department attempts to find a path out of the Palestine labyrinth.

The United States has sought in vain to persuade the British to extend their mandate just a little longer or offer troops to serve with the American contingents in enforcing a U. N. trusteeship in the Holy Land.

Because the United States could find no one outside the Soviet bloc to contribute troops to such a force, the trusteeship idea has become virtually a dead letter. Britain's scheme to install a shadow authority in Palestine appears to have the best chance of passage by the emergency Assembly session.

The Security Council today held a brief debate on the reported Arab invasion of Palestine.

Truman for Partition, Rabbi Believes

By The Associated Press

Rabbi Samuel Thurman of St. Louis expressed belief on leaving the White House yesterday that President Truman has not changed from the objective of partition of Palestine.

He said the President "agrees with me that the Jews didn't go to Palestine to fight the Arabs."

"His heart is absolutely devoid of hatred and rancor. I am sure that he is not motivated by politics in his consideration of the (Palestine) problem."

He said the most important consideration governing the President's action on Palestine was a desire "to avoid bloodshed."

Congressmen Launch Moves For Palestine

A three-point program toward settlement of the Palestine conflict was given President Truman by 36 House Republicans yesterday, and three Senators launched a conference on Palestine last night.

The three moves suggested by the House Republicans to President Truman and his Cabinet were:

1. Discontinue the embargo on shipment of arms to the Jewish militia of the de facto Jewish state until a just truce is arranged, or until non-Palestinian forces are withdrawn.

2. Provide for the United States taking part in any effective measures to protect Jerusalem and its environs, and to place these areas under international control as already proposed by the American representative at the United Nations.

3. Provide for United States support of all efforts which might be made within the framework of the U. N. to apply such sanctions as the U. N. Charter provides to bring about compliance with the General Assembly's resolution on Palestine partition.

Among the signers were Representatives Jacob K. Javits (N. Y.), Franklin J. Maloney (Pa.) and James G. Fulton (Pa.) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) said last night a "fumbling" United States policy on Palestine is "contributing to the terrible tragedy" and jeopardizing America's interests in the Middle East.

The conference sponsored by Senators Morse, Dennis Chavez (D., N. Mex.) and Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) began last night with a closed reception and briefing of the 40 or more experts in international law, and economic, political and military phases of the Middle East, with "technical arrangements . . . organized by the American League for a Free Palestine."

Closed sessions will be held today and Sunday. Senator Chavez will speak at a public luncheon at 12:30 p. m. today in the Hotel Statler, and Senator Tobey at a public dinner Sunday night in the Carlton Hotel for conference participants. The conference's conclusions will be disclosed at the dinner.

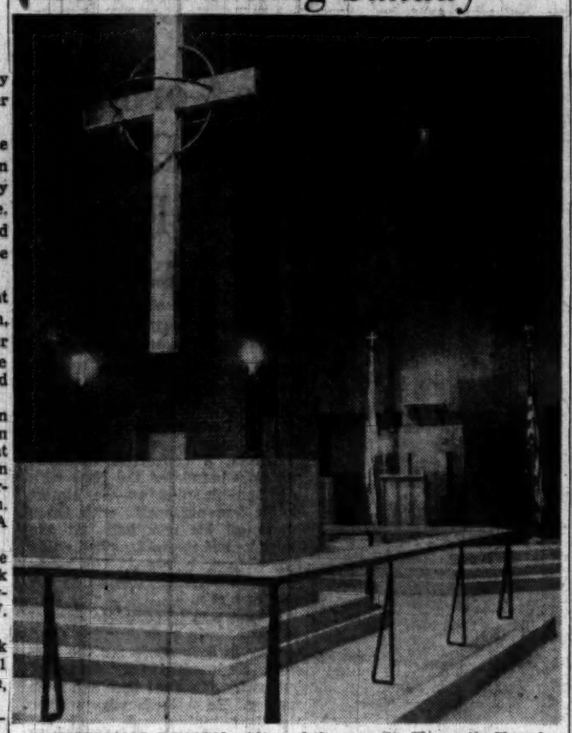
For St. Michael's
Parish Hall Construction Starts Soon

Construction of a parish hall for St. Michael's Episcopal Church, Arlington, is expected to begin in June, the Rev. George C. Weiser, rector of the parish, has announced.

The first unit of the church plant will be built on 11th rd. north, between Jefferson and Ivanhoe sts., he said. The portion of the church to be built this year will be the future assembly room of the completed parish hall, and will be used temporarily for a chapel until the church is built.

First services of the St. Michael's congregation were held in 1945 and the church was organized in 1947. At present services are held in the Walter Reed School. On Sunday, the Right Rev. W. Roy Mason, Bishop Suffragan of the Diocese of Virginia, will preach and confirm a class of adults and children at 11 a. m.

St. Clement's to Dedicate Modern Building Sunday



FUNCTIONAL DESIGN—Altar of the new St. Clement's Church is in the center of the building, in which members of the congregation will sit facing one another. The church, on Seminary rd., Alexandria, will be dedicated at 4 p. m. Sunday

The Right Rev. Frederick G. Goodwin, Episcopal Bishop of Virginia, will dedicate the new building of St. Clement's Church on Seminary rd., Alexandria, Sunday at 4 p. m.

The $110,000 building is a radical departure from traditional church architecture. The exterior is perfectly plain with the exception of the entrance. On either side of it will stand two great figures of Moses and Elijah, representing the Law and the Prophets of the Old Testament.

Directly in front of it a white mosaic cross will be a symbolic reminder of the Incarnation and sacrifice of God, according to the rector, the Rev. Darby Betts. Over the main entrance will appear a mural of the Last Judgment.

The church was designed by Joseph Saunders, Alexandria architect, who worked closely with Betts to attain the contemporary styling in functional forms. It is one of the first churches of the Anglican Communion built in contemporary architecture.

Within the building, the functional characteristics are maintained. The congregation will sit facing one another with the altar, center of Christian activity, in the center. Over the altar hangs the empty cross, symbol of sacrifice, the Resurrection, and the defeat of death.

Windows have been eliminated in St. Clement's Church, and lighting is furnished by spotted stars in the blue dome. Modern air conditioning provides ventilation.

The new church is the second building to be constructed for the parish, which is only four years old. The original building, completed in 1944, was outgrown by the rapid expansion of the Fairlington and Parkfairfax communities.

Collection For Shrine Set Sunday

Mother's Day, Sunday, has been designated as the date for the second annual Nation-wide collections of funds for the completion of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at Catholic University.

The bishop's committee of the church has urged entire families to receive Holy Communion in honor of the Blessed Mother and make their contributions so that the shrine may become a reality. Last year 71 dioceses contributed over a million dollars to the fund.

Officials hope to complete the structure by 1954, when the Catholic world will observe the centennial of the Definition of the Dogma of the Immaculate Conception. Plans now call for the completion of the superstructure of the campanile, with the interior of the upper church to be finished later.

Lutheran Action Sunday

May 9 has been set as National Lutheran World Action Sunday. On that day Lutheran congregations throughout the Nation will join in prayer and a financial drive for $3,525,000 to support overseas relief work by the National Lutheran Council.

Bible Class Honors Founder

The Eleanor Nordeen Class of Mount Rainier Christian Church, 33d st. and Bunker Hill rd., Mount Rainier, last night honored the woman for whom the class is named at its twenty-fifth annual banquet.

Mrs. Nordeen

Mrs. Nordeen, who lives at 4204 32d st., Mount Rainier, organized the class and has been the only teacher in its long history. Originally there were 10 members—today there are 90.

The class has been one of the most active in the church, according to William S. Egbert, general superintendent of the Bible School. Many of its members have become officers and teachers in the church organizations.

In addition to teaching the Sunday school class, Mrs. Nordeen was first president of the women's council of the church and served for one year as president of the Loyal Women Class. She was for 15 years a member of the committee on religious education.

As commissioner of the Prince Georges County Council of Girl Scouts, Mrs. Nordeen has been active in community and county affairs.

Mrs. Nordeen is the mother of five children, all of them now grown, and has five grandchildren. Her husband, C. E. Nordeen, is a former superintendent of the Sunday school and is now a member of the board of trustees and an elder in the church.

Nats Lose to Tribe, 8-0; Lemon Hurls Four-Hitter

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Baseball Off the Cuff:

A WEEK AGO when Lou Boudreau's Cleveland Indians were leading the league with six wins in a row, he was doubtless feeling expansive. "Beat the Bums," was the gist of his comment in an interview with The Sporting News, and that's the way it was blaringly headlined. Boudreau was saying, simply, and with excellent logic, that pennants are won by beating the tar out of the weaker clubs.

POVICH

But now Boudreau probably wishes he had that crack back. As of yesterday the Indians were in a four-game nosedive and no longer in the lead. They were knocked off in three straight by the Athletics, one of the clubs Boudreau included among the "Bums," along with the White Sox, Nats and Browns. Bob Feller has been knocked out in two starts since Boudreau expressed himself so incisively.

What Boudreau said, however, is true enough. Pennants are won by beating the bums. It's a truism, though, that is better left unsaid. And in the case of the Athletics it boomeranged because the A's at a time when they were being labeled Bums not only knocked the Indians out of the league lead, but took it over themselves. This is no time to go around insulting the A's.

YOU'D HAVE TO SAY the whole American League race has been exciting to date. It's not the two-team race between the Yankees and Red Sox that was supposed to develop. They're still in the league, but the Red Sox are in fourth place, and the Yankees are struggling to catch the front-running A's. And tempers are short at Boston, where they had a first-class melee the other day.

Birdie Tebbetts, the Boston catcher, tagged George Vico, rookie first baseman of the Tigers so violently on a play at the plate that Vico took a punch at Tebbetts. After they were separated, they resumed their battle in the runway. It isn't clear yet who won the decision, but it is no surprise that Tebbetts figured in the battling. He's always willing.

At Detroit a few years back, after Tebbetts had words with Vernon Kennedy, White Sox pitcher, little Tebbetts invaded the Chicago dressing room to take a punch at Kennedy. He wasn't picking on a chump. Kennedy had lately won the national decathlon championship and was probably the best athlete in the United States at that moment, and Tebbetts took a pretty good mauling. "I hope the next fellow I get mad at is a little guy," Tebbetts used to say, after that.

UP IN NEW YORK the same day there was a near-riot in Yankee Stadium. Even Yankee fans agreed that the St. Louis Browns got a royal rooking when Umpire Jim Boyer called Bobby Brown's suspicious line drive into the right field stands a two-run homer. The right field customers showered the field with cushions and paper in protest against the Yankee's victory.

It could only happen in New York, where the visiting club gets the best break from the fans. In another town, the umpire's decision would have been hailed with jubilation by the customers.

There's sentiment for the Browns this year, anyway. Zach Taylor, who got the thankless job of running the ball club after the Brown's owners sold off $450,000 worth of their players, has been doing all right. Taylor and his patchwork crew have showed no signs of chucking it. They were up in the first division until the other day, and acting like a pretty good ball club.

IT'S PRETTY CLEAR now that the Detroit Tigers are giving up their one-time whizz kid, Dick Wakefield, who got $52,500 for signing a contract in 1940, plus a custom-built car as lagniappe. The Tigers aren't admitting that they have asked waived on Wakefield, but they aren't denying, either, that his name is on the waiver lists. Anyway, he's not playing.

This season, Wakefield has made only two hits in 27 trips to the plate, after flopping last year. The Detroit pitchers were never happy when Manager Steve O'Neill persisted in leaving Wakefield in the lineup, and they like the whole idea of benching him. In Detroit Wakefield is labeled as a singular fellow, with heaps of natural ability and no great determination to make good.

Clark Griffith bid high for Wakefield before he signed with the Tigers. He shows a telegram offering the fellow $40,000 to join up with the Washington club. But Griffith's interest in Wakefield has apparently diminished. "I might take him at the $10,000 waiver price," he says.

Coaltown Will Run in Preakness

Baltimore, May 7 (AP).—Those terrific twins from Calumet Farm, Coaltown and Citation, are going to renew their racing duel in the Preakness after all.

General Manager Ben Jones announced in Louisville today that Owner Warren Wright had decided to send up the second half of the winning Kentucky Derby combination.

Jones said Coaltown would be shipped next Monday or Tuesday to join Citation and keep intact Calumet's one-two punch for the second of the 3-year-old classics a week from tomorrow.

Entries May Dwindle

Coaltown was held in Kentucky while Citation came up to Pimlico last Tuesday. Jones said then it was Calumet's intention to let Citation go it alone, keeping Coaltown in reserve just in case he was needed.

Jimmy Jones, Ben's son and Calumet trainer, evidently was disappointed in that decision.

Just before Ben's announcement in Louisville, Jimmy said he still was talking it over with his father and thought the "smart thing to do" would be to run them both.

The decision to start both Citation and Coaltown is likely to change the complexion of the $100,000 race again.

Right after the Derby most owners of Preakness eligibles were hesitant in taking up the Calumet challenge. During the past few days when it appeared Citation would be without his powerful running mate there was a sharp rise in probable starters to about 10.

Several of them might take a dim view of bucking the powerful combination which simply outclassed four other Derby starters.

Arcaro Respects Coaltown

Thus the argument which the Derby was thought to have settled—whether Citation or Coaltown is better—can start all over again.

Beaten 3½ lengths by Citation in the Derby, Coaltown came out of his first defeat in fine shape, according to Ben Jones. The blazing speed which he has shown still left many backers unconvinced he won't prove the superior.

Jockey Eddie Arcaro, who rode Citation to victory, is among them.

"That Coaltown gave me the time of my life and I'm still wondering what would have happened if that track had been fast," Eddie said of the Derby. "I don't ever want to ride anything against that Coaltown again."

Cards Beat Phillies, 7-4

St. Louis, May 7 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals offset some shaky fielding with a long-range hitting attack to subdue the Philadelphia Phillies tonight, 7 to 4.

It was Howie Pollet's first win in three starts. A three-run homer by Nippy Jones and a two-run single by Del Rice were the big blows in the Cards' 10-hit attack on three Philly pitchers.

Dutch Leonard, veteran knuckleball pitcher of the Phillies, was forced to leave the game in the third inning when he was struck on the right leg by a line drive off the bat of Red Schoendienst.

Dodgers Walk Over Cubs, 9-5

Chicago, May 7 (AP).—Brooklyn benefited by 14 walks to down the last-place Chicago Cubs today, 9 to 5, in a game that dragged through 3 hours and 36 minutes.

A triple by Preston Ward, the Dodgers' rookie first baseman, after Reliefer Ralph Hamner loaded the bases with walks in the sixth, was the key blow of the eight Brooklyn bingles. The drive into the right-field corner broke a 5-5 tie.

Fight Manager Cleared Of Misplaced Hot-Foot

Boston, May 7 (U.P.).—Joe Dow, pint-size Boston manager, was cleared today of a published charge that he pressed lighted matches against a boxer's back to "pep him up" during a fight. The Massachusetts State Boxing Commission found no evidence that Johnnie Walker, a negro middleweight from Philadelphia, was so treated.

Jockey Al Bodiou Reported Suicide

Louisville, Ky., May 7 (AP).—Deputy Coroner Joseph Beck reported Jockey Albert E. Bodiou, 31, was found dead in his room here today, a .32-caliber pistol bullet wound in the head.

Beck said a suicide verdict was returned, adding he learned the jockey had been despondent over gaining weight.

With Nats as Instructors

Dickie, 10, Leads Kids Today To Johnson Baseball Schools

When a 10-year-old kid gets enough fun out of any school to "hope it doesn't rain tomorrow because I want to go" that school must offer something special.

That happens to be the case of the Walter Johnson Memorial Baseball Schools and with Dickie Johnson.

Dickie, who's hardly big enough to swing a bat, was on hand bright and early for last Saturday's opening session and he'll be there this morning for Class No. 2, at 10 a. m.

"And I'm bringing some buddies with me, too," he added when told the weatherman promised a good day.

Dickie is one of the 200 youngsters who turned out at Taft Playground, where Second Baseman Al Kozar was the Nat instructor.

Taft is only one of 20 diamonds where the sessions will be held today with the Nats serving as instructors and Recreation Department supervisors assisting.

Most phases of baseball will be discussed, but the emphasis will be on batting. Nat instructors will show the kids how to bat and then the boys will step up to the plate and try to whale the daylights out of the ball. Or maybe they'll practice bunting. In any case, after they've heard a few words from their instructors the kids will go out and practice what they've been taught.

It's all free, of course. Registration for kids who didn't make last week's first class begins at 9 a. m. The Nats will show up at 10 o'clock and the fun begins. It's open to everyone 17 and under.

Kids are asked to attend the school in their neighborhood.

The Junior Board of Commerce, which along with The Washington Post and Recreation Department sponsors the schools, will once again furnish its motor corps to transport the Nats from Griffith Stadium to the various playgrounds and back to the ball park.

Pep Decisions Willis In Non-Title Bout

Detroit, May 7 (AP).—Relying almost entirely on left jabs and hooks to pile up a heavy margin in the early rounds, Willie Pep, Hartford, Conn., holder of the world featherweight title, took a 10-round decision from Leroy Willis of Detroit tonight before 6686.

Pep weighted 131 for the non-title go and Willis 134½.

Mrs. Calvert Wins

Mrs. George W. Calvert won yesterday's odd-hole half handicap golf tournament at Washington Golf and Country Club with a 48-8—40. Tied for second were Mrs. D. Monsees and Mrs. R. E. Aldred with 57-12—45 scores.

Joe Gordon, Clark Belt Home Runs

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

For the third straight night in a row the Nats got some shutout pitching last evening but on this latest occasion it was in the region of the neck—and their two-game winning streak was collapsed by Bob Lemon of the Cleveland Indians.

Lemon, a converted infielder, not only befuddled the Nats with his four-hit pitching—he almost outhit 'em personally with three blows off his own bat. At the finish he and the Indians had a tidy 8-0 victory, before 11,120 hardy fans who were undismayed by the cold and rain.

Lemon was in complete control of the Nats in recording his third victory in four starts for the season. He permitted only two of 'em as far as second base and none farther. He walked nobody after the first inning and struck out five. He was showing 'em a hissing fast ball and a wicked curve.

Haefner Batted for Five Runs

Mickey Haefner went the first five innings for the Nats and retired with a 5-0 deficit after running afoul of a pair of home run blasts by Allie Clark and Joe Gordon in the fifth. The Indians collected their last three runs against Forrest Thompson in the ninth after Chic Pieretti held 'em at bay for three innings.

Haefner's first rough inning was the third in which the Indians leaped into a 2-0 lead after Lemon fired a single to center as a starter.

Following a walk to Tucker with none out, Haefner temporarily stayed the Tribe by grabbing Clark's bunt for a force play at third, but Boudreau lashed one run home with a single to right. A bit later Clark scored from third when Haefner unwisely attempted a play at the plate on Robinson's slow roller.

The Indians didn't trifle with singles in the fifth, though. With one out, Clark whacked a homer a dozen rows high in the left-field bleachers. Boudreau walked and Gordon surpassed Clark's wallop with a lengthier clout into the same sector for a two-run homer.

Thompson Given Going-Over

For no particular reason, in view of Lemon's invincible pitching, the Indians attacked Thompson for three runs in the ninth. They did it with four consecutive hits by Boudreau, Robinson, Gordon and Keltner. Gordon's swat was a double to the base of the right field wall.

The closest the Nats came to scoring was in the first inning when a pair of walks put men on with one out, but Gordon dispatched 'em at that time by grabbing Vernon's grounder and routing it to Boudreau for a double play.

A single to left by Yost with two out in the third and a single by Jake Early under the same conditions in the fifth were the only two hits the Nats owned going into the sixth inning.

Then with two out, they put together singles by Coan and Vernon but Boudreau, a busy shortstop

Braves Hand Blackwell His Third Loss, 4-3

Cincinnati, May 7 (AP).—Ewell Blackwell, star Cincinnati pitcher, failed to finish for the fourth consecutive time this season and went down to defeat before the Boston Braves today, 4 to 3. It was his third loss against two victories.

Home runs by Bob Elliott and Jeff Heath, along with six walks and three other safeties in 5-2/3 innings, were enough for Blackie.

He left the game holding his pitching arm and with the bags filled. Eddie Stanky, first to face replacement Harry Gumbert, singled home two runners and that was the ball game. The runs were charged against Blackwell.

Cincinnati officials said after the game that Blackwell apparently had injured his right shoulder in walking Pitcher Bill Voiselle, the last man he faced. An X-ray examination will be made tomorrow to determine the extent of the injury.

Charles KOs Elmer Ray In 9th Round

Chicago, May 7 (AP).—Ezzard Charles, Cincinnati, ranking challenger for the world's light heavyweight championship, tonight knocked out Elmer "Violent" Ray in the ninth round of their scheduled 10-round battle.

Charles, outweighed 17 pounds, floored Ray heavily with a right to the chin two minutes and 43 seconds after the round opened. Ray dropped to his hands and knees during the count. At the count of six he fell flat on his face and was unable to regain his feet when the referee had finished.

Charles scaled 175 pounds and Ray 192.

This was the first professional fight card in the Chicago Stadium in 77 days since Sam Baroudi, Akron, Ohio, light heavyweight, died without regaining consciousness six hours after being knocked out by Charles last February.

Charles pledged $5000 of his purse to Baroudi's parents while Promoters Irving Schoenwald, Jack Begun and Jack Hurley chipped in with another $5000. Tonight's bout drew 9319 spectators and a $42,703 gate.

Pimlico Tries To Improve The Breed

Baltimore, May. 7 (AP).—Improvement of the breed applies to the spectators at the Pimlico race track, too.

The Maryland Jockey Club, track operators, say they have evicted 32 persons classed as "undesirables." There are posted signs forbidding touting, or offering so-called information and tips. Bookmaking is frowned on, too.

And Henry A. Parr club president, in a formal statement, notes that it is charged with policing "the stables' areas and racing inclosure for the full and proper protection of the public. . . ."

The track is policed by 100 uniformed men, including the members of the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Bureau.

Vico, Tebbetts Pay $100

Chicago, May 7 (AP).—President Will Harridge of the American League today fined George Vico, Detroit first baseman, and Birdie Tebbetts, Boston catcher, $100 each for fighting during the Tiger-Boston game at Boston yesterday. Vico took a punch at Tebbetts in the fourth inning after being tagged out after a squeeze play misfired. They were ejected from the game, but resumed fighting in the tunnel leading to the clubhouse.

Cookie Wants Coast Post

Galesburg, Ill., May 7 (AP).—Cookie Lavagetto, recently released by the Brooklyn Dodgers, disclosed today he had no further major league aims, but would hunt a job in the Pacific Coast League.

The 33-year-old infielder, starred as a pinch-hitter in the 1947 World Series.

Terps, Villanova Clash Today in Dual Track Meet

Maryland's track team, undefeated in dual competition, faces a stern test against Villanova at College Park, 2 p. m. today.

While the Terps are given a slight edge because of their strength in the field events, it promises to be a close affair.

Included among Villanova's running stars are George Guida and Ed Fitzgerald, who figure to give Ed Matthews a stiff argument in the 440. Miler George Thompson was clocked in 4.18 against Navy and also turned a 1.56 half-mile.

Browning Ross is a Wildcat standout in the two-mile run and sprinter Joe McCreary is well regarded. Ike Eichhorn, Southern Conference javelin champ whose best effort this season has been 202 feet, will be opposed by George Coleman who has reached 201.

Post Cup Postponed Because of Weather

The Class A Washington Post Cup golf tournament at Army-Navy Country Club was postponed until a future date because of yesterday's bad weather.

Under the direction of the Women's District Golf Association, the tournament is tentatively set for May 28 at Army-Navy.

Sunny Bones Second in Heavy Mud

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Md., May 7.—Mrs. R. H. Heighe, who seems to get as much fun visiting with her horses in the morning as watching them run in the afternoon, sent Indus out on the muddy track this afternoon. The little filly surprised some 10,000 customers by winning the Pimlico Breeders' Stakes, one of the most-sought-after events on the local calendar.

With Jockey Lloyd Knapp aboard, Indus bounced through the heavy going to get home four lengths in front of George Thorn's Sunny Bones, a daughter of Mr. Bones. Two lengths farther back came the Washington-owned Parkie, the odds-on favorite, to be third in the colors of Don Adams.

Wins Two Trophies

Mrs. Heighe, from Bel Air, Md., received two trophies—one from the Maryland Jockey Club, as owner of the winning filly and another from the Maryland Breeders Association for being the breeder.

Backers of the daughter of Piping Rock and In India also had reason to cheer for they pocketed a $37.40 mutuel. Indus was clocked in :57, the same time as registered by Christmastide in the first running of the event last year.

Indus had shown good form in two races at Havre de Grace, but had only a scattered backing. She earned $4095 for her less-than-a-minute of action.

Indus Takes Lead

Brindisi and Ratine were prominent in the early running. However, this pair faltered and there was a gang rush to get to the front. Indus had the most punch entering the stretch and assumed command. She drew far out. Sunny Bones then rallied, drove between horses and closed gamely. Parkie never was a dangerous factor and just took the show money by a neck from Just Lovely.

A pair of 9-year-old horses with a yen for the mud figured in a pay-off of $39.60 on the Daily Double. J. M. Geisey's Freeland's Lad was an easy winner in the first at $17.80 and the Ridgewood Stable's Bardia, a $5 favorite, accounted for the second.

Howard Shatters Relay Record

Baltimore, May 7.—Howard University smashed the C.I.A.A. medley relay record by six full seconds here today and sent 12 qualifiers into tomorrow's final in the association's track and field championships.

Howard's quartet turned in a sparkling 3.32 performance, eclipsing the 3.38 mark. Competing for the Bisons were Basil Keane, Neal Humphreys, Booker Anderson and James Bruce. The latter completed his 880 leg in 1.55.

Right behind Howard was Morgan with 11 qualifiers.

4 N. Y. Kids Launch Florida 'Training' Trip on 35 Cents

New York, May 7 (U.P.).—Detectives searched today for four 11 and 12-year-old baseball fans who set out with 35 cents for Florida and its better baseball weather.

A fifth major league hopeful, Joseph Iaia, 11, grew tired when the quintet reached Central Park, borrowed a nickel and returned home. He said yesterday's sunny "baseball" weather brought out the travel-bug in him and his companions.

"This is the weather," they decided. "Let's go to Florida where there's more of it."

Joseph said his buddies had gotten as far as the Hudson River ferry on a quarter. Then they set out on foot.

Police are still seeking Edward Schatz, 12; James Oliver, 11; Peter Mortensen, 12, and Charles Richter, 11.

Spencer Leads Virginia Open

Hampton, Va., May 7 (AP).—Wynsol Spencer, one of the host club's simon pures, breezed around the par-72 Hampton Country Club layout today in a three-under-par 69 to take the quarter way lead in the Virginia State Open Golf tournament.

Until Spencer came in late in the day, the two-under-par 70 scores turned in by Eddie Dodson, unattached professional from Richmond, and Peyton Massie, another Hampton amateur, had stood up since early morning.

Only three other golfers among the 11 who teed off out there today could beat old man par. These were a couple of amateurs, W. L. Lewis of Norfolk and Harry Wheeler of Hampton, and a professional, R. S. Saunders, also of Hampton. All posted 71s.

with nine assists, grabbed McBride's grounder for a force-play at second.

After that the Nats couldn't get to first base against Lemon, which is no way to win ball games.

IN SHORT—Gene Bearden, a rare type with a left-handed knuckle ball, makes his maiden start on the mound for the Indians tonight. He's from Oakland of the Coast League . . . Sid Hudson will pitch for the Nats . . . The Indians, who have suddenly blossomed as the power club of the league and are leading in home runs, raised their total to 20 last night . . . Allie Clark owes his fifth-inning homer to the Nats' Alphonse-Gaston act on the previous pitch when his high pop fell uncaught between Early and Vernon . . . Bob Lemon's value to the Indians doesn't end with his pitching. He's their leading hitter, with eight hits in 15 times at bat for an average of .555 . . . The two clubs played on a wet field last night and you could say the Nats weren't caught with their tarpaulin down . . . It's in the factory for repairs and the field is at the mercy of the rains.

High Track Teams Face Busy Slate

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Nearly every schoolboy track team in the Washington area will be occupied today in one of four big meets in Washington, Alexandria and Baltimore.

Biggest is the Metropolitan, which begins with trials at 9:30 a.m. at Wilson Stadium, and is slated to end at 6 p. m. Trials were originally carded for yesterday but were pushed back because of rain.

Twelve schools are entered, including defending champion Washington-Lee of Arlington, Anacostia, Calvin Coolidge, Central, Eastern, George Washington of Alexandria, McKinley Tech, Montgomery-Blair, Roosevelt, Western, Woodrow Wilson and Fairfax.

Sidwell Friends' new track will be the scene of the second annual Interstate Athletic Conference meet at 2 p. m. Entered are Friends, Landon and St. Albans of Washington, St. James of Hagerstown, Md., and Sanford Prep and St. Andrews of Delaware.

Cardozo, Phelps, Armstrong and Dunbar send teams over to Morgan College in Baltimore to compete in the Colored Intercollegiate Athletic Association's high school invitational. And in Alexandria, at 1:30 p. m., Episcopal is host to Woodberry Forest of Orange, Va., and Hill School of Pottstown, Pa.

Besides the Metro trials, some 30 scholastic events were postponed yesterday by rain. The three Interhigh League baseball games, Coolidge at Anacostia, Eastern at Central, and Roosevelt at McKinley Tech, were rescheduled for Monday at 3:30 p. m.

The finals of the Sidwell Friends Boys and Junior invitational tennis tourney also were postponed until Monday. The girls section, slated to begin today, was moved back until Sunday, 2 p. m.

Injured Herman Barron Takes Lead in Goodall Golf Tourney

New Rochelle, N. Y., May 7 (AP). Herman Barron of White Plains N. Y., limped over the rain-swept Wykagyl Country Club Course in 69 shots today to gain a one-point lead over defending champion Bobby Locke of South Africa after 36 holes of the Goodall Round Robin Tournament.

Barron's wrenched ankle was so swollen it was necessary to give him a shot of pain-killer before he could play. Jug McSpaden, who has retired from tournament golf, had gotten his clubs out of the locker and was preparing to substitute in Barron's foursome when the chunky professional decided to play.

He never had cause to regret the decision. Despite the rain, which alternated between a drizzle and a downpour and reduced the gallery to a few hundred, Barron was out in 33 strokes—4 under par—and came back in 36 to gain 11 valuable points on his three playing companions, Lloyd Mangrum, Claude Harmon and Henry Cotton.

Pressing the leaders tonight was Bob Hamilton of Prince Georges Country Club, who gained nine points on the second round and boosted himself to plus 20 although he shot no better than a par 72.

Britain Asks Greece About Executions

Athens, May 7 (AP).—The British Embassy said today that it had asked the Greek government for "details and an explanation" of the execution of 213 prisoners this week.

Eighteen more were executed at Aegina Island prison just outside Athens this mornisg. Nineteen were executed there yesterday, 13 in Athens, and 11 in Salonika yesterday, and 152 Thursday—all convicted on murder charges in most cases in connection with the leftist revolt in 1944.

The executions followed the bomb assassination of Liberal Justice Minister Christos Ladas last Saturday. Ladas had approved 125 executions during his six months in office.

(An Athens dispatch to the British Exchange Telegraph in London said a new coalition cabinet was sworn in tonight by King Paul. The cabinet shakeup also followed Ladas' death.)

Acting Justice Minister Constantine Rentis denied ordering the newest wave of executions, however, explaining that public prosecutors ordered the executions following decisions of the pardon board. Nearly 800 more persons are reported in Greek prisons with death sentences.

The British Embassy said Ambassador Sir Clifford Norton had sent a note to Populist Vice Premier Constantin Tsaldaris about the executions and called yesterday on the secretary to Liberal Premier Themistokles Sophoulis. Both Tsaldaris and Sophoulis said Norton had not lodged a protest, however.

(State Department officials in Washington said there was no indication the United States planned to join Britain in asking for an explanation of the executions. State Department reports said more than 1200 persons are awaiting final disposition after conviction of crimes in the 1944 revolution. The reports said 2127 more were tried in February and March for offenses against the state, including treason, with 291 being condemned to death.)

Premier Sophoulis today named five Liberals to the reshuffled Greek cabinet. The Populists of Tsaldaris named four new ministers.

Parliament, which was to have met Monday, has been suspended for a month while the Populists and liberals carried out the cabinet reorganization to meet criticism the government was falling down on important functions.

[The United Press said United States Aid Administrator Dwight P. Griswold hinted today that American authorities would oppose any attempt to clamp a military dictatorship on Greece.

[Griswold declared he saw no likelihood of the establishment of a military government in Greece. [The aid administrator said that he would go to Washington late next week to discuss Marshall Plan aid to Greece. He said that a new "work relief" program soon would be launched.]

Flying Saucer Adds To Greece's Troubles

Athens, Greece, May 7 (U.P.).—The "flying saucer" made its first appearance today on the troubled northern frontier of Greece, Athens newspapers reported.

Press dispatches said that a "flying disc," traveling fast at a height of about 400 feet, was sighted by residents of the Lake Doiran area on the Greek-Yugoslav frontier. It was flying southward from Yugoslavia over Greece and reportedly whistled like an artillery shell.

Calvert Gaming Drive Fizzles; Charges Against 40 Dropped

Prince Frederick, Md., May 7 (AP).—A campaign against slot machines in Calvert County fizzled out today when the State dropped gambling charges against some 40 store and tavern operators.

The action was taken after a Circuit Court jury returned a "not guilty" verdict against the second defendant to go on trial.

State's Attorney Arthur W. Dowell decided there was little chance of obtaining convictions against any of the others and asked the court's permission to drop the cases.

The furor started last November when the three judges of Maryland's Seventh Judicial Circuit directed the county grand jury to "investigate thoroughly the unscrupulous activities of gambling interests."

Chief Judge William A. Loker told the jurors:

Police List 138 Big Gamblers

told Blick I didn't want him to take any men from his vice squad and handicap their operations."

Barrett, in writing to Fay about the work being done by Blick and "a special squad," referred to "the magnitude of the assignment," but did not disclose the number of men involved.

Yesterday, when asked by The Washington Post if Lieutenant Blick and the men working with him will continue the work for Fay's office, he commented:

"That's all I asked in my letter to Mr. Fay. I still have to find out what he wants to do about it."

Asked if the disclosure that police know of 138 gamblers is at variance with a previous statement attributed to him, to the effect that Barrett said, "I do not know of any big-time gambling going on in Washington," he replied:

"That isn't what I said at the time. What I said was, 'There wasn't any big gambling joints,' such as crap games, race horse betting and all that."

Will Query Fay on Return

Major Barrett said he will ask Fay again, when he returns to Washington, what he wants to do about the Blick assignments.

The letter barrage which has been going across Indiana ave., between Municipal Center, where Barrett has his office, and the District Court Building, where Fay's office is located, began this way:

On April 28, the special grand jury probe was authorized by Attorney General Clark, apparently without the previous knowledge of Barrett and Commissioner Young.

Acting Police Superintendent Floyd A. Truscott promised "full cooperation," and when a numbers place was found operating in the 900 block of Florida ave. nw., ordered a "'continuous patrol" placed in front of it.

Major Barrett, last Sunday, countermanded the order with the statement that the local gambling situation should remain "as is" for benefit of the grand jury.

The chain of correspondence with Fay began on Tuesday, in extremely polite language, when Barrett offered to appear before the grand jury with police information on gambling, and offered Fay whatever police investigators he needed in the probe, on two hours' notice.

Fay stated he personally could not accept this offer because it was a matter for the grand jury. Barrett then pointedly asked him what he wanted to do about the Blick assignment, which Fay says he has already answered—and now has reiterated.

Numbers Charge Holds Walter Reed Attendantt

A 22-year-old attendant was arrested during the lunch hour at Walter Reed Hospital's No. 2 mess hall yesterday, charged with operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips.

Lieut. Roy Blick, vice squad chief, said members of his squad and two men from the Army's Criminal Investigation Division made the arrest, after vice squad undercover men placed numbers bets with Andrew Burr of 418 Elm st. nw., over a period of three days.

The arrest was made without the knowledge of hospital authorities, said Blick, who commented that he believes there is a "substantial numbers operation" at the hospital.

When arrested, Burr had in his possession $64, including marked money, and marked numbers slips, police said. Other number slips were found in his locker, police said. Burr was released in $1500 bond for appearance in Municipal Court today.

Red Cross to Celebrate Founder's Birthday

The American Red Cross and 65 other national societies will observe today the 120th anniversary of the birth of Henri Dunant, founder of the Red Cross movement.

At the age of 31, Dunant, a Swiss, witnessed the bloody battle of Solferino in 1859 in which French and Sardinian troops fought for 15 hours against the Austrians. After helping to organize civilians to aid the tens of thousands of wounded, he returned home to Geneva and began a one-man crusade for international agreements for the treatment of wounded.

High Court Ruling

Minnesota Bars Women Bartenders

St. Paul, May 7 (U.P.).—The State Supreme Court today prohibited women from tending bar in Minnesota.

In effect, the court ruled 4 to 3 that women bartenders are not as good as men.

The minority said women can do with a word and a smile what men need fists to accomplish.

The majority said if women tended bar, taprooms would be even more crowded with women than they now are. The minority said: "How can they be any more of a threat behind the bar than in front of it or anywhere else in the room?"

The justices devoted 27 legal-size sheets to their argument. Nineteen pages upheld man's superiority and the other eight woman's.

The document upheld a 1945 St. Paul city ordinance forbidding women to tend bar.

Flower Show Listed

The Woodlawn Garden Club will hold its annual flower show at the Mount Olivet Methodist Church from 4 to 9 p. m. next Saturday.

Senate Warned Of Deadline would not be ready to act for 10 or 12 days.

Neither antipoll tax legislation nor a permanent FEPC was included on the must list.

Taft told reporters he felt there was no time left for the Senate to act on any measure which stood no chance in the House.

A third list of measures on which Taft said some action might be taken included:

1. A bill to regulate bank holding companies.

2. A bill to extend Federal marketing agreements for citrus fruits.

3. The proposed "equal rights for women" bill.

4. A proposed constitutional amendment by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (R., Mass.) which would reflect popular votes for President and Vice President in the Electoral College.

5. The bill to give Hawaii the status of Statehood, which has passed the House, but is tied up in the Senate Insular Affairs Committee.

Taft did not list the House-passed bill to repeal Federal oleomargarine taxes. He said the Finance Committee plans speedy action to allow a Senate vote on this before Congress quits.

The policy committee did not discuss the proposed international wheat agreement, Taft told reporters. He said there was some discussion but no decision as to action on a long-range farm plan.

plant "a radical change of position."

It said present TVA power facilities are adequate to meet the "preferred classes of customers"—States, municipalities and cooperatives. The balance is sold to private utility companies. It is TVA's contention that the steam plant is needed to meet both community and industrial demands.

"Precedent Will Be Set"

Said the Republican majority: "If the position of the Authority is sustained, a precedent will be set which will justify unlimited future expansion of electric generating facilities by TVA by means of steam plants or other methods having nothing to do with navigation or flood control."

The steam generating item was contained in a bill carrying $37,979,061 to help finance TVA, RFC, FHA and a score of other Government corporations which get most of their money from operating revenues. The total sum granted was $16,665,000 below what the President asked in his budget. The corporations were authorized in addition to spend $68,933,600 out of their own funds, or $4,707,000 less than was recommended in the budget.

Tied to the bill was an anti-Communist rider, already attached to two previous appropriation bills. The rider bars use of any of the money to pay Government employes belonging to labor unions whose officers refuse to sign non-Communist affidavits. Under the Taft-Hartley law, the affidavits are required before unions can use NLRB machinery.

The full $15,142,000 request for continued construction of TVA's Watauga and South Holston dams was approved, the committee saying these projects were "entirely justified" by basic provisions of the TVA law.

The proposed steam generating plant at New Jacksonville, Tenn., however, raised this question, the committee majority said: "Whether the Congress did in fact intend that TVA should operate primarily as a public utility for all purposes and without limitation, and further whether there is constitutional authority for such operations."

It quoted former Chairman Lilienthal, who left TVA to head up the Atomic Energy Commission, as indicating in 1938 that he did not recognize an unlimited obligation to meet all the demands of all the power users in the valley.

The committee felt it should not "establish such a far-reaching precedent, but rather should leave the question for the careful consideration of the appropriate legislative committee."

Steam "Nothing New" to TVA

The Democratic minority said steam plant generation is "nothing new" in a hydroelectric system or even in TVA operations. The minority report cited construction of steam plant facilities at Muscle Shoals in 1918, and later transfer of these and private steam as well as hydro facilities to TVA. In addition, it said Congress in 1940 authorized TVA to build a steam plant near Watts Bar Dam.

Unless TVA's hydro power can be "firmed up" by use of the steam plant in dry months, the minority report said, much of it would have to be sold at "dump rates" to private power companies that would "like to buy this power and firm it up." That, said the minority, would be poor Government business judgment.

It said the new plant is needed to meet "normal load growth" in the valley, aside from any consideration of the vastly increased power that may be urgently required for defense purposes.

And it urged Congress not to "in effect require usable, salable power to be sold at reduced rates, adding to the profits of the power companies, perhaps, but at the expense of further development and improvement of the Tennessee Valley and its people."

Capital Park Visitors Double During March

The number of visitors to Washington's National Capital Parks in March this year was more than double the number the same month last year, National Park Service reported yesterday.

A total of 275,480 persons visited the parks and monuments here during March, 1948, bringing the total to 871,240 for the first quarter of the year.

Much of the increase was accounted for by a report from the American Automobile Association of a 50 per cent increase in the number of conventions held here during the month.

Terrell High Auditorium Closed as Fire Hazard

Corning Asks Costs Of Remodeling It, 3 Other Halls to Comply With Code

School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning yesterday banned use of Terrell Junior High School's auditorium, pending action by the Board of Education, because it does not meet requirements of the new District fire safety code.

Dr. Corning said he has asked Director of Construction Archie Hutson to prepare estimates of cost for making inprovements to bring four school auditoriums into compliance with the code.

The three other auditoriums have been ordered closed during the past six weeks for the same reason, he said. Two of them—Hine Junior High at 7th and C sts. se.. and Sumner at 17th and M sts. nw.—were cited in the annual inspection report of the fire marshal.

Following this report, Dr. Corning said he asked a further check by the fire marshal and building inspector of the two schools and two others where auditoriums appeared unsafe.

The auditorium at Bell Vocation High School, 7th and O sts. nw., was closed a short time later. The action at Terrell, located on M st. nw., between 1st and New Jersey ave., followed receipt of a report on this special study, forwarded by the Commissioners, Corning said.

The auditoriums did not comply with the new fire safety regulations, he explained.

$27,000 Raised By Trade Board For Tourist Drive

Some $27,000 of an $85,000 drive for funds to promote Washington as a tourist and convention center has been subscribed, the Greater National Capital Committee of the Board of Trade announced after its first weekly report luncheon.

The hotel division has subscribed for about $25,000 of the total thus far, it was reported. The funds will be used for promotion during the year beginning July 1.

Campaign Chairman Dan Holland pointed out at the luncheon, held in the Statler Hotel, that the first subscriptions place the campaign in about the same position as last year, when the total goal was later exceeded.

Police Warned, One Fined in Letters Case

3 Privates Guilty Of Neglect of Duty In Delivery Failure

Three policemen were found guilty yesterday in failure to deliver letters which would have called police applicants in for examinations.

A trial board convicted:

Pvts. Forrest E. Dougherty, Robert W. Haun and O. F. Gray, all of the Eleventh Precinct, of neglect of duty. Dougherty also was found guilty of conduct prejudical to the good order of the department. Dougherty was fined $25 on each count. The other two were given a warning.

Fellow officers testified that Dougherty and Haun were given 11 letters to deliver in their precinct by scout car; failed to deliver five of them. Dougherty, testimony showed, called Gray who was on duty at the desk after Dougherty left work and asked him to have the remaining five delivered.

The letters were found 29 days later with other papers in the scout car.

Five rookies who were victims of the delayed delivery finally showed up last Tuesday.

Fides House Work Praised By Archbishop

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, last night praised the work of Fides House here at a reception given in his honor.

The Archbishop said, "Fides House is small but we think it is significant. It is doing a tremendous amount of work in the neighborhood, but its significance rests also on the fact that it points out a need for more work of the same kind.

"It is particularly significant," the archbishop added, "that you at Fides House actually live in the neighborhood in which you work. You are a part of the neighborhood, real neighbors. In this you are actually living a vital part of your religion. You are pointing the way."

Archbishop O'Boyle was welcomed to the settlement house by the Rev. Paul Hanly Furfey, chairman of the board of directors of Fides House, and head of the Department of Sociology at Catholic University. The House established in 1941 and privately supported, is located at 1123 New Jersey ave. nw. Dr. Mary Elizabeth Walsh, associate professor of sociology at Catholic University, is director. Cab Driver's Daughter Being Sought

Attractive Girl, 17, Left Home With Casual Acquaintance

The attractive 17-year-old daughter of a District Cab driver last night was missing from her home, which she left Thursday night on her first date with a youth she met in a lunchroom.

The parents of Patsy Powell, 4000 38th st., Brentwood, Md., asked local police and the FBI to search the area for their daughter, who works in the processing laboratory of the Eastman Kodak plant, 1350 Okie st. ne.

Her mother, Mrs. Mary Powell, said Patsy left the house between 9 and 9:30 p. m. Thursday, saying she was "just going for a ride" with the youth. Last night the Powells still had heard no word from their daughter.

"She didn't even take her purse, because she said she was coming right back," Mrs. Powell said.

The father, Arthur G. Powell, a Diamond driver, expressed the opinion her daughter must have been drugged.

Mrs. Powell said the youth called for Patsy in an automobile, but didn't come into the house Thursday night. The girl went out to meet him, she said.

Mrs. Powell said her daughter was "very attractive, with brown hair and big brown eyes." She described the youth as having wavy black hair and being of slight build.

Judge Directs Plummer's Acquittal in Union Case

Trial of 5 Others Accused on Funds Conspiracy Charge Continues Monday

Justice Alexander Holtzoff in District Court yesterday directed a verdict of acquittal for George Plummer, one of the six defendants in the $100,000 labor union conspiracy case.

The government closed its case yesterday. On Monday the defense of the five remaining defendants will start. They are Faust Moreschi, Joseph Speed, Evan Hamilton, George Morgan and Isaac Keiner. They were all officials of the International Hod Carriers and Building Laborers Union locals of this area, except for Weiner, who is a builder.

According to the indictment, they conspired to loot the union treasury of almost $100,000 in 1941-1942. The key man in the alleged conspiracy, Larry Kelly, is missing and reportedly dead. Three other alleged plotters were acquitted by Justice Holtzoff earlier.

Plummer is a former president of Local 74 of the union, located here. Justice Holtzoff ruled that in his case there was insufficient evidence to sustain a conviction by the jury.

Justice Holtzoff said that the case against Faust Moreschi was "very weak" but said it, as in the four others, could be submitted to the jury.

Just before the Government rested, Special Prosecutor Leo A. Rover submitted evidence designed to establish that more than $51,000 was misapplied from building committee funds of Local 74 alone.

Hacker Values Senator's Slap At $10,000

A slap on the wrist is worth $10,000 to Taxi Driver John B. Edelcamp, jr., of the YMCA, 1736 G st. nw.

That is the amount sought in his suit filed against Senator Milton R. Young (R., N. D.) who lives at the Wardman Park Hotel.

The action, filed in District Court charges Senator Young struck the driver on the wrist in an argument over taxi fare. Young admitted the blow.

It says Senator Young and a companion hailed Edelcamp's cab near the Senate Office Building May 5 to go to 9th and Constitution ave. nw., where the companion got out. Then Edelcamp was told to go to the Wardman Park where, the suit says, the Senator gave Edelcamp a dollar bill and asked for a quarter change.

Edelcamp said the fare was 90 cents and an exchange of words followed. When the Senator went around to look at the cab's license plates, Edelcamp followed him and told him "you can have the quarter." Then, according to the complaint, the Senator slapped the hacker's wrist.

Senator Young said he had made the trip several times and the fare generally was 50 cents. "No driver ever complained about it before," he said.

[Under group riding the fare would have been 50 cents as separate fares or rides the zone price is 90 cents.—Editor's note.]

300 Attend Business-Roosevelt High Reunion, First Principal, Retired Teachers Are Guests

Nearly 300 members of the Business-Roosevelt High School Alumni Association last night sang,

"It's a grand old school,
"It's a bully old school . . ."

And a guest of honor at the annual reunion dinner in the school, 13th and Upshur sts. nw., knew full well it is.

He was Allan Davis, 81, and still sawing his own firewood, who had helped make it so.

He came to Roosevelt (then Business) in 1890 as its first principal, and retired in 1936 after 51 years in the public school system. His successor—the school's only other principal—Mrs. May P. Bradshaw, also was among those honored at the reunion.

Davis, musing over the past, said he "wouldn't say the pupils are better today than in '86 (when he was new to the school system and teaching at the old Washington High School, 7th and O sts. nw.), "but the boys and girls are interesting to meet.

In addition to Davis, 10 retired teachers also were guests.

Alumni from the class of '99—represented by Arthur C. Houghton, whose wife, Ruth, was '05—to the youths and pretty misses of '48 were present.

Also present were the captains of Roosevelt's winning units in competitive drill. They included: James C. Dulin and Robert Silverman, whose units took first place in 1909 and 1926, respectively, and H. Clay Espey, whose unit won third place in 1919.

Other alumni present included Henry A. Schweinhaut, '20, District Court justice, who gave the chief address, Richmond B. Keech, '16, District Court justice, and Albert Steinem, '09, new member of the District school board.

3 Teen-Agers Get 5-15 Year Holdup Terms

10-to-30 Years Given Man in Fatal Stabbing of Wife

Three teen-age youths were given 5- to 15-year prison sentences for holdups yesterday by Justice David A. Pine of District Court.

They are Bernard E. Ward, 18, of 507 Eastern ave. ne.; Sidney L. Gross, 19, Hughesville, Md., and Roger D. Grant, 16, no known address.

Ward and Grant were sentenced for a kidnap-holdup of John A. Selby, 51, a painter of 1350 E st. ne. According to police, they threatened Selby with a gun while he stopped for a red light at 4th and H sts. nw., on the night of February 18. They forced him to drive into Maryland, robbed him of $15 and tied him to a tree with adhesive tape near Seat Pleasant, Md., and then drove off in his automobile.

Gross and Grant were charged with a $275 robbery of a liquor store and Ward and Grant with a $109 robbery of a drugstore.

In another case, Justice Pine gave a 10-to-30-year prison sentence to Duvall L. Smith, 23, of 2812 38th st. nw. He was convicted of second-degree murder in the fatal stabbing of his wife, Hazel, 23, last October.

William Linton, 37, of 1913 9th st. nw., was given two to eight years for manslaughter in the fatal stabbing of Helen M. Sharpe, 40, of the same address.

A 22-year-old man was given 5 to 15 years for ravishing a 9-year-old girl. He is James L. Mitchell of 35 K st. nw.

Laborer Gets Life in Attack On Woman, 68

A 30-year-old laborer was sentenced to a life prison term yesterday in Alexandria Corporation Court for attempted rape of a 68-ear-oid woman March 4.

Defendant was James H. Morris, 421 S. Alfred st., Alexandria, who was originally charged with raping the woman as she returned about 1:30 a. m. to her apartment home, 708 S. St. Asaph st., after baby sitting.

Morris pleaded not guilty. The jury returned the verdict and sentence in 30 minutes after an all-day trial in closed court.

Defense Attorney Edwin Brown noted an appeal. Since Morris was charged with rape, he told a reporter, the jury could only convict on that charge or acquit.

It marked the first time in six years that an Alexandria jury had given a life sentence. Commonwealth's Attorney Howard W. Smith, jr., said he had asked for the death penalty.

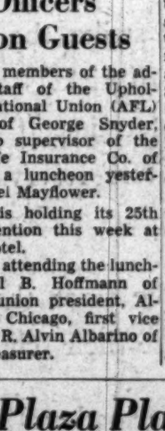
On Drunk Charge

Dalstrom To Face Trial Board May 17

Ivan J. Dalstrom, superintendent of machinery for the District Fire Department, will face the department's trial board May 17 on charges of intoxication and improper operation of a department vehicle, Fire Chief Clement Murphy announced yesterday.



Dalstrom

The action resulted from Dalstrom's arrest April 11 on drunk and reckless driving charges after the Fire Department sedan he was driving hit the rear of another vehicle at 38th st. and Bladensburg rd., Colmar Manor.

Dalstrom was acquitted of the drunken driving charge but was fined $50 for reckless driving by Trial Magistrate Arthur P. Owens in Hyattsville Police Court April 19.

The trial board charges against Dalstrom consist of two intoxication specifications, that he "caused himself to be placed under the influence of an intoxicant" and "used a form of intoxicant," and one specification that he operated "a Fire Department vehicle in such a way to cause collision."

The trial board, which will convene at 1:30 p. m., May 17, will include: Assistant Corporation Counsel Irving Bryan, chairman; Assistant Auditor Robert L. Mudd, and Deputy Chief J. A. Mayhew, Murphy revealed. Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward A. Beard will prosecute the case, he said.

Dalstrom forfeited $3 collateral in Hyattsville Police Court Thursday on a charge of passing a red light Monday.

Lawyers Tell Of Garner's 'Kill' Heritage

Ancestors Insane In 3 Generations, Defense Asserts

George A. Garner, 25-year-old accused slayer of two taxicab drivers here, inherited a tradition of murder and insanity that went back three generations, his attorneys said yesterday in District Court.

George and his brother, Lawrence J. Garner, 23, face trial in District Court this month for first-degree murder in the robbery, beating, and shooting of two hackers here February 27.

The elder brother's attorneys, John A. Croghan and Louis Jongbloet, made the assertion in a plea for a lunacy inquiry before Justice Richmond B. Keech. The plea was denied. Lawrence did not petition for the inquisition.

Affidavits Presented

The lawyers presented a series of affidavits pointing to the fact that George's father, a grandmother and a granduncle and a great-grandfather were insane, that the granduncle killed a friend here in 1890 and the great-grandfather killed his own mother and died in 1906 in St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Dr. Bernard Cruvant, Government psychiatrist, indicated to the court that tendency to murder and the particular kind of mental disorder "if any" attributed to George Garner, are not considered inheritable. He said he believed George Garner to be sane.

Justice Keech told the attorneys they would have a chance to bring out evidence of insanity at the trial. Croghan said he would appeal Judge Keech's opinion.

Cites Record

He told the court this was George Garner's own record:

1. At the age of 11, he was in the second grade and reached the sixth grade at the age of 17. Three times he was sent to special schools for incorrigibles, and almost killed a man at the National Training School.

2. He spent a term at the Chillicothe Reformatory, and on his release served 18 months in prison for forgery. He stabbed his dog to death.

3. At the age of 13, he was committed to Gallinger for psychiatric observation. At District Jail, he twice attempted suicide and was put in solitary confinement for striking a guard. Great Plaza Plans Approved, May Cost 400 Parking Spaces

Plans for development of the Great Plaza between 13th and 14th sts. north of Constitution ave., approved yesterday by the Fine Arts Commission, may rob downtown Washington of 400 parking spaces, it was charged.

F. Warren Brokaw, coproprietor of the Grand Plaza parking lot leased from the District, estimated the plan would cut capacity of the lot from about 1100 cars to between 700 and 800.

The plan approved by the commission calls for a grass panel 140 feet wide extending east from the Oscar Strauss memorial fountain on 14th st. to 13th st. Public Building Administration officials, who drew up the revised plan, said the lot would provide parking space for 986 autos after the improvement.

But Brokaw, who said he hadn't seen the plan, declared a strip 140 feet wide wouldn't leave space enough for that many cars.

At its meeting yesterday, the Fine Arts Commission also:

1. Took under study a preliminary design for a proposed addition to the DAR building between Continental and Constitution halls.

2. Approved a model for a World War II Navy Occupation Medal.

3. Considered designs for American military cemeteries near the site of Old Carthage in North Africa and Manila in the Philippine Islands.

Senate Unit Approves Tamm for D. C. Justice

Vote of 2 to 1 Sends Nomination To Full Committee On Judiciary

Edward Allen Tamm's nomination to be associate justice of District Court here yesterday was placed before the Senate Judiciary Committee with 2 to 1 backing from a subcommittee.

Subcommittee Chairman Forrest C. Donnell (R., Mo.) voted against Tamm, and subcommittee members John S. Cooper (R., Ky.) and Harley M. Kilgore (D., W. Va.) voted for him.

The 2-to-1 lineup was indicated earlier in the week, but not formally announced then.

The Judiciary Committee's decision on Tamm was deferred to a future meeting. Judiciary Chairman Alexander Wiley (R., Wisc. said that it would receive action before the end of the session.

In clearing the nomination, members of the subcommittee reserved the right to vote as they saw fit on it in further proceedings.

Tamm, assistant to the FBI director, has been opposed, since his name was presented to the Senate early in February, by the American and District Bar Associations. He has received the backing of Government officials, including Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) and Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) and several individual attorneys.

A major protest against Tamm was based on his lack of trial experience in the courtroom as a practicing lawyer. Supporters have contended that his role in the FBI has involved wide use of legal training and experience with legal problems.

Execution Stay Ordered for 3 Condemned

Justice Alexander Holtzoff yesterday postponed until July 9 the execution of three men convicted of a sidewalk holdup-murder here last year.

The District Court jurist ordered the stay of execution in order to give the United States Supreme Court time to act on a writ of certiorari. The defendants were scheduled to die in the District Jail electric chair May 14.

The condemned men are Shirley Harris, 23; Joe M. Gray, 19, and Herbert H. Hall, 18, who were convicted of first-degree murder in May, 1947.

A jury convicted them of fatally shooting Frank C. Kelly, 56, of 4004 New Hampshire ave. nw., in March, 1947. Kelly had attended a meeting in Central High School in the evening. After the holdup men fled his body was discovered on the sidewalk at 11th and Euclid sts. nw.

The United States Court of Appeals denied the men a new trial.

Judge Bids Police Enforce Tobacco Laws for Minors

Judge Alfred D. Noyes of the Montgomery County Juvenile Court yesterday asked county police to enforce more strictly the State law prohibiting the sale of cigarettes or tobacco to minors under 15.

Judge Noyes said he took this action after questioning 25 children from 11 to 13 years old, all admitted habitual smokers. One 12-year-old boy told him, the judge said, he smoked a pack of cigarettes every two days.

Maryland law provides a fine of not more than $30 or up to 30 days in jail for selling tobacco products to children under 15 without written authorization from parents or legal guardians.

Area News in Brief

Board Nominates New Welfare Chief

The Board of Public Welfare, in a special meting yesterday, again nominated a candidate to fill the post of director of the welfare department.

The nomination will be sent to the District Commissioners this weekend, but the name of the candidate will not be made public until they have had a chance to study the board's recommendation.

Eight applicants, including several from out of town, were considered at yesterday's meeting, it was learned. The board finally decided to indorse a local man.

Among those who have been considered are Col. Waldron E. Leonard, director of the Veterans Information Center, and John Tramburg, superintendent of the District Industrial Home School.

The board's first nomination of Raymond F. Clapp was rejected by the Commissioners last month. The director's post has been vacant since the death of Ray Huff last December.

Murphy Gets Citation

Carmody, commanding officer of the Greater Washington Recruiting Station. The ceremony took place in the District Building office of Commissioner John Russell Young.

Chest Seeks Quarters

A housing committee has been formed by the Prince Georges County Community Chest to explore the possibility of placing all its agencies under one roof as an economy and efficiency move.

According to Chest officials, the welfare and social agencies are now scattered throughout the county, and present-day rentals are making "serious inroads" on their respective budgets. Acquisition of a single building for all agencies, they pointed out, would result in a lower aggregate rental and also would help coordinate the work of the services.

Music Heads Howard U. Art Festival

By Paul Hume

Howard University's provocative Festival of Fine Arts reached the subject of music yesterday.

In the morning, Dr. Earl V. Moore, president general of Pi Kappa Lambda, and dean of the school of music of the University of Michigan, installed a chapter of the honorary music society on the Howard campus.

In the afternoon, a symposium discussing the role of musicians in the world today held the first of three sessions. One can often perform a great service to music without making a musical sound, but merely in rational discussion of it and the forces affecting it.

This is the evident purpose of the current symposium. Since neither music nor musicians function independently of society, four subjects were proposed for discussion in today's sessions: (1) student-teacher exchange; (2) problem of discrimination and segregation; (3) art and commercialism; (4) an adequate curriculum for professional students in music.

Nineteen students from the Juilliard Institute of Music in New York are joining with Howard's music students in discussion and in student recitals given during the two-day meetings on music.

Last night Howard's choir, which has achieved distinctive success up and down the eastern coast this year, sang in Rankin Chapel. They were assisted by a quartet from Juilliard.

The basic assumption of the interrelation between all the arts and a truly democratic society now being discussed at Howard is not only valid, but for Washington, a peculiarly essential problem for enlightenment. Today's meetings, at 10 and 2 o'clock, are open to the public at a small admission charge.

PLANS for raising funds for hungry children are discussed by Mrs. Raymond Clapper, public relations director of the drive; H. R. Baukhage, chairman (left), and Ralph A. Tracy (right), executive director. Known as the Crusade for Children, the drive will raise funds for 26 volunteer foreign relief organizations, reaching children around the world

Crusade for Children to Seek Funds to Aid Needy Overseas

Capital residents will be asked to join in the Crusade for Children to aid needy youngsters overseas.

Plans for the crusade were outlined by Mrs. Raymond Clapper, public relations chairman of the American Overseas Aid-United Nations Appeal for Children, yesterday at her apartment, 2101 Connecticut ave. H. R. Baukhage, chairman of the organization, explained the forthcoming campaign to raise funds for 26 voluntary foreign relief agencies which will minister to needs of children.

The campaign will open at the Sylvan Theater on Monday, May 17, at 7 p. m., when Margaret O'Brien, child film star of MGM, will be the feature attraction.

One of the important factors in the campaign, Mr. Baukhage stated, is a coupon book amounting to $100, which will be sold off in $1, $5 and $10 coupons.

A $1 bill will buy 30 days supplementary feeding for a hungry child; inoculations for five children; it will buy bread and peanut butter for 65 hungry children.

Five dollars will buy six months' supplementary feeding (180 meals with 600 calories each or cod liver oil for 40 children for one month.

Ten dollars will buy one year's supplementary feeding (365 meals with 600 calories); powdered milk for 205 infants for one day; or a glass of milk for 400 hungry children.

It was announced by Ralph A. Tracy, executive director, that Milton Kronheim has accepted chairmanship of the business unit; Miss Eunice Kennedy has accepted the chairmanship of the child participation unit, and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim has accepted chairmanship of the advance gifts unit.

Senator Wiley Talks at Banquet

"Russian propaganda doesn't fool thousands of displaced persons who are eager to come to the United States," Senator Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin told some 200 delegates attending the annual banquet of the Maryland Department, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War and its auxiliary held last night in the Roosevelt Hotel.

Senator Wiley warned, however, that one of our problems is to see that the DPs who come here are "flowers not weeds, in the beautiful garden of America."

The speaker called upon the audience to be alert against the "nasty little foxes who attempt to destroy our national Government." Senator Wiley stressed the fact that all Americans should understand what is really meant by the American way of life—the Constitution, Bill of Rights and the liberties enjoyed under our form of government. The Senator also spoke of the need for faith in world peace and the necessity to work to make it possible.

"What the world needs is a leaven of right thinking," he concluded. "It needs to regain the concept of liberty such as offered in our Constitution and the Bill of Rights."

Mrs. Wiley, wife of the Senator, was among the honor guests at the head table. Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, 3d, presided at the banquet gathering.

Col. Patrick J. Ryan, Deputy Chief of Chaplains, gave the invocation. Greetings were brought by Thomas L. Bufter, national vice president, commander in chief of SUVCW; John W. Snider, department commander of Maryland SUVCW; Mrs. Cora M. Manoly, department president of the Maryland Auxiliary to the SUVCW; Mrs. Katherine L. Joyce of Pittsburgh, national president of SUVCW Auxiliary.

Among others giving brief talks was Mrs. Edna S. Lambert, past national president of the auxiliary. Dr. John Clagett Proctor, member of the Cushing Camp, and president of the D. C. Society of Oldest Inhabitants, read an original poem, "The Old Buggy Days."

Special music included a solo by Miss Marian Kiatta of Eastern High School and several choral numbers by the Stuart High School Harmonists under the direction of Miss Gladys Lockard.

On the Party Front...

Fearings Entertain for English Visitor

By Marie McNair

A PRETTY visitor from England was reason enough for Mr. and Mrs. George Fearing's cocktail party yesterday afternoon at the 1925 F Street Club.

Mrs. Roger Wakeling, who arrived this week from London, is a niece of the Bishop of Bath and Wells, and an old friend of the hostess, who is also British born. She's staying with the Fearings, who have recently moved to Falls Church and admit they've gone completely rural.

Tall, slim with a skin like an English garden rose, Mrs. Wakeling is still goggle-eyed over the Washington markets and shops. A suit takes six months' coupons in England, and the frock she wore yesterday must surely have taken those and more. Of black sheer crepe fitted and flaring, the deep yoke was of black net with a scroll pattern edged in silver. A single gardenia was pinned at her shoulder.

Mrs. Fearing wore golden slippers, a full skirt of black taffeta and a white chiffon blouse. And all eyes caught the magnificent jade and diamond pendant earrings matching the larger pendant at her throat.

Pleasant Setting

The pleasant drawing room of the club with its crimson damask draperies, its soft sofas and soft lights was just comfortably filled.

Mrs. George Mesta, in a black satin suit, furs about her shoulders and a gold hat trimmed with graceful osprey feathers, sat on a sofa with Miss Rosalind Rust and Mrs. Victor Alfaro. Dr. Alfaro was telling me about his father, the former Ambassador from Panama, who with Senora de Alfaro was caught in the Bogota revolution. They escaped, and are now on their way to Lima, where Dr. Alfaro will attend a series of conferences.

From State Department

There were a good many of Mr. Fearing's colleagues from the State Department in the group, among them Mr. and Mrs. Tyler Wood, Robert Breckinridge, Mr. and Mrs. Walton Butterworth and Col. and Mrs. Philip Strong, who've recently bought a house in Georgetown and have been busy redecorating.

I saw George Tyson, but not Mrs. Tyson, who I learned is on a flying trip to Newport to see about reopening her house. Joseph Grew, our former Ambassador to Japan, was talking to Col. Merritt Booth, who was military attache of the American Embassy in Tokyo, and Mrs. Booth.

Mrs. Emory Land was there, but not the admiral, and others were Mrs. Peter Dewey, Howland Sargeant of the State Department, and Mr. and Mrs. James Reynolds —he's administrative assistant to Senator Leverett Saltonstall and comes from Boston, Mr. Fearing's home town.

GEN. AND MRS. CLIFTON B. CATES entertained at cocktails yesterday afternoon at the commandant's house at the Marine Barracks. Guests numbered 250, and included members of Marine, Navy, Army and civilian circles.

AT THE invitation of the State Department, members of the Congressional Club were invited to Blair House to tea yesterday afternoon from 3 to 5. A portion of the Marine Band played in the drawing room and Mrs. C. Clifford Davis, president of the club, received with other members of the board.

COMDR. AND MRS. J. R. TUCKER entertained about 75 guests at cocktails yesterday at their home at Edgewater Beach, Md., as a farewell for many of their friends who are leaving in June.

Commander Tucker is attached to the postgraduate school at the United States Naval Academy.

MRS. TOM CLARK, wife of the Attorney General, entertained at luncheon yesterday for Mrs. Paul McNutt, wife of the former Ambassador to the Philippines, who is here for a brief visit from New York.

Countess Tolstoy Describes Anti-Communist DP's Plight

By Genevieve Reynolds

Countess Alexandra Tolstoy, daughter of Count Leo Tolstoy, author of "War and Peace," yesterday told a heartbreaking story of some 1,200,000 displaced Russians, Serbs, and Poles, who dared to defy the Communists.

Guest of honor and speaker at the American Newspaper Women's Club, she said that she received about 700 letters each week from the miserable DP's, many of whom are scientists, doctors, lawyers and other intellectuals. "Many of these people ask me for poison to kill themselves, not food," she said.

Countess Tolstoy pointed out that there are two groups of DP's. One includes the White Russians who fled when the Communists came to power, settled in other countries and fled again when the Red army marched into Poland, Bulgaria and other Balkan countries. The other group of DP's are the Russians who had lived under the tyrannical Soviet regime and refused to return once they were out of the country.

The dynamic speaker appealed to the American people not to confuse the real Russian people with the Red government. "It is not a government elected by the people as you have here," she said. "All the cultured Serbs, Russians, Poles, Ukranians say this is not our government—this communism," she continued.

On the brighter side of the ledger, she told how several hundred Russian DP's are being repatriated on the Reed farm, which she runs for this purpose in New York State. "I find them so patient, so religious and so willing to work. And despite the hardships they have undergone, they still are keeping their standards very high."

Countess Tolstoy came to Washington especially for the White Russian Relief Benefit, which is being held today, 5:30 to 8 p. m., at the United Nations Club. Part of the proceeds from the party will go to the Tolstoy Foundation.

Among those present at the party yesterday were Mrs. Lee Murphy, Mrs. Frederick Witt, Mrs. Robert E. Freer, Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard, Mrs. John Shields, Mrs. Andrew Kirk, Mrs. Kenneth Watson, Mrs. Charles Wahl, Miss Opal Hadley, Mrs. I. V. Mishtowt, Miss Marguerite Griggin, Mme. Economou-Gouras, wife of the Counselor of the Greek Embassy, and Mrs. William Henry Watson, jr.

Delegates Are Named To New England Society

Kendall, first vice president general of the National Society of New England Women and past president of Phyllis Lyman Colony of the National Society, will head a delegation of the Colony members to attend the annual congress of the National Society of New England Women to be held at Swampscott, Mass., May 12-15.

Mrs. George L. Palmer, director general of the National Society, and Mrs. Ethel Duke Barrows, president of Phyllis Lyman Colony, will also attend.

Colony members who will serve as delegates to the congress are: Mrs. Roy C. Bowker, Mrs. Otto Hammerlund, Mrs. Bernice M. Heffernan, Mrs. J. DeWitt Leech, Mrs. George E. McCann, Mrs. William H. McGlauflin, and Mrs. R. Stevens Pendexter.

Lady Astor Presents Gift To Stratford

At a special ceremony Sunday at Stratford, home of Robert E. Lee in Westmoreland County, Va., Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson will present an eighteenth century silver bowl, the gift of her sister, Lady Astor, to the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation. Mrs. Harry B. Hawes, widow of Senator Hawes, and president of the foundation, will receive the gift for Stratford.

From Washington, directors of the foundation who are expected to be present are Mrs. Cazenove Lee, Mrs. Richard Wigglesworth, and Mrs. Breckinridge Long.

The program, which will begin at 2:30, will have as speakers John H. Baker, president of the National Audubon Society, and Col. Robert Lee Scott, jr., author of "God is My Co-Pilot."

Both Lady Astor and Mrs. Gibson are directors of the foundation.

Doings of the Day

Wilson College Club of Washington will hold a luncheon meeting at Olney Inn, when guest speaker will be Miss Margaret C. Disert, dean of Wilson College at Chambersburg, Pa. Mrs. Garrett again will be guest of honor at a brunch at noon tomorrow at the home of Mrs. William H. Girdley, 7304 Gloster rd., Woodacres, Md.

Ask Anne

How Can Mildew Be Prevented?

We recently moved into a house and found that the corners in both bedrooms were badly mildewed. The mildew seems to have penetrated roughly three layers of wallpaper, which we removed. The wall was then washed with a strong solution of household bleach. The area was thoroughly dried before painting. Now the problem. Will the mildew return? If so, how can it be treated or eliminated? Incidentally, the paint used was of the water-base type.

G. A. H.

Your best chance for preventing the return of mildew is to discover where the moisture came which caused it. Possibly there is a leak in the joints around a window which allowed rain to come in. Or, if these are upstairs bedrooms, the leak might be in the roof, or in the flashings (pieces of sheet metal which close the gaps between two roof surfaces) around dormer windows or chimneys. Sometimes these leaks are such that no moisture is seen at the time of the rain, but it runs down inside the wall to soak through later at a spot some distance from the place it entered. Because of this, we sometimes do not associate inside moisture with outside leaks. For instance, a leak in the flashing around an upstairs dormer window was known to cause a large moist spot in the middle of the living room ceiling, fully 15 feet from the window. So, to avoid future trouble from moisture, have your roof and window joints checked for leaks by a roofing man.

The eggs froze in my refrigerator. Is it alright to eat them?

P. A. M.

Yes, indeed, eggs which have been frozen are all right, that is, of course, if they have not been allowed to thaw and spoil after having been frozen.

Is it possible to wash pillow feathers in the pillow case, thus killing two birds with one stone, without making the feathers lumpy?

U. S. G.

It is usually wise to place the feathers in a sack twice as large and more porous than a pillow case. The reason for this is that in the larger sack there is more room for the sudsy water to come in contact with the feathers. Then too, feathers in a larger sack are exposed better to air for drying. This is usually a real advantage here since our usual high humidity causes slow drying. If feathers do not completely dry in a day or so, they will develop a very disagreeable odor.

I'm planning to be married very soon and I'm going to wear a street-length dress with cap sleeves. It is necessary for me to wear long gloves, short gloves, or any at all? If it is proper for me to have something on my arms, can I wear the type that does not cover my hands?

H. E. H.

If the wedding is to be a small one, gloves are not necessary. However, with very short sleeves, many brides prefer to wear the 8 or 10 button length glove or mitt. The mitt or type which does not cover the hands would be very appropriate.

Will you please tell me how I can remove grass stain from a pair of children's cotton frontier pants?

M. M.

If the material is washable, use hot water and soap on the grass stain, rubbing well. Or, if not washable, sponge the stains with alcohol. Test the alcohol on an inconspicuous spot to see the effect on the color before applying it to the stain.

How do you remove stains from a walnut chest of drawers? It is second-hand, and the top is marked with black stains of some kind.

M. M.

If these stains have penetrated the wood, I'm afraid that the only treatment which will completely remove them is to take off all of the finish and then sand or bleach the wood until there is no trace of stain remaining. Use a good varnish remover to take off the old finish, following the directions which come with the kind you buy. When the finish is off, if the stains are not too deep they can probably be removed by sanding. Use a medium grade sandpaper at first, finishing the job with a fine grade of sandpaper. If the stain is very deep, bleaching will be necessary. Use a commercial wood bleach and follow the directions which come with the product you buy. However, if possible avoid using a bleach on the stained spot, for it may alter the color of the wood on the stained spot so that you will have to use the bleach over the entire piece to avoid a spotty appearance. When the stain is removed, sand the entire piece until satin-smooth, wipe away any dust with a lint-free cloth and apply the finish desired. For finish you can use two coats of stained varnish, shellac or oil, finished with a thorough rubbing of wax.

Stressing of Food Allergies May Warp Child's Outlook

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

With allergies toward common foods so universally recognized these days, there is real danger of making food-sensitive children too self-conscious about their eating.

One small miss, knowing her own reaction to milk, is concerned when she is invited out to a meal, that she will not be served milk-bearing foods.

A young boy reiterates when he sits down to the table that he won't drink milk, or eat beans or custard. He wants everyone to know these make him sick. He appears to be rather proud of his sensitivities.

While these are necessary cautions, it would seem advisable to tell children that they may be only temporary ones. Otherwise, children are apt to develop into food hypochondriacs. Perhaps the best tactics for the mother to adopt, is to admit that for the time these foods do not "like" the child. But, the hopeful aspect is, that if they are omitted from the diet for some length of time, there is every chance that the body will set up an immunity to them and they can then be eaten without unhappy reaction.

It is well to try the forbidden foods about every six months, and give the child—and the parent—an opportunity to test the reaction. It would be too bad if the child looked upon good foods as perpetual enemies. If, in some cases, this should happen to be true it is still a far more wholesome attitude to assume that the reaction to them will be temporary.

Just the feeling a child might have that a food was "poisonous" to him, would be apt to make him so fearful that he would react adversely to it, even if he had outgrown his own personal allergy.

Mothers will protect babies from eating foods which upset them. But as the child grows and becomes aware of his own list of foods which must be taboo, it is well to reiterate the temporariness of these reactions and not to wrap the child in a cocoon of cautiousness which would make eating a feared adventure for life.

Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a heart-shaped coronet, and she carried a small white Bible, which had been used in the weddings of her grandmother and mother. A spray of white orchids covered the Bible.

Miss Ruth Ann Harris was the bride's only attendant. She was dressed in ballerina frock of pale blue lace and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of spring flowers.

Science Told to End Rush Toward Doom

Roanoke, Va., May 7 (AP).—Sociologist John Collier called upon science tonight to flag down civilization's rush toward doom by changing the mass mind of the world.

The scientific brains of the world have the power to reverse the trend, said the City College of New York professor and former United States Commissioner of Indian Affairs. Moreover, he added, they have responsibility for the indirect consequences of their ideas, discoveries and inventions.

Collier spoke at a panel discussion of the Virginia Academy of Science on "The Scientist's Responsibility in the World Crisis."

"Here is the hope," Collier said. "Let citizenship enter the souls and brains of the scientists as a white fire . . . and then the genius that is science will know how to transform the individual minds and the mass mind of the world. And it will know how to build the one world indeed.

"The issue is the issue of final fate."

Collier listed as factors responsible for bringing the world to the precipice of an atomic and disease-spreading conflict the following:

(1) Extreme increases in population; (2) accelerating waste of natural resources; (3) erosion of the social being through uncontrolled industrialism and mass communication at lowest common denominator levels, and, (4) the fanaticisms of two warring ideologies.

The contests between the two worlds of thought, he said, grow more distorted and ruthless with every passing month, forcing freedoms and "intellectual virtues to become identified as enemies of the state, enemies of the power purposes, heresies and heretics and witches and social criminals."

"Thus is there killed or driven underground," he went on, "the free movement of judgment and discovery; thus are men and groups in many lands made blind in preparation for the doom. Witness not Russia alone. Witness the goings-on in our own Congress these passing days. Witness the Condon case.

"We come finally to those fearful things which biological and physical technology have brought to birth. A great city may now be laid to endless sleep through botulism poison manufactured in some obscure plant no larger than a brewery.

"Our own Nation in four years has produced and stored enough atom bombs to annihilate every large city in Europe within 24 hours. The ideological and power opponent, Russia, is conservatively expected to be embarked on the mass production of atomic weapons within five or seven years."

Conference Ends

Highway Group Sets Objectives

The Second Highway Transportation Congress closed its two-day conference here yesterday by adopting the following resolutions:

1. To recommend that Federal aid be withheld from State toll roads and from those States which divert highway taxes to non-highway purposes.

2. To call for long-range highway planning committees in each State to set up construction programs so timed as not to contribute to inflation.

3. To support in full the objectives of the President's Highway Safety Conference.

It was pointed out that Pennsylvania with its turnpike and Oklahoma with its proposed toll road will be affected directly by withdrawal of aid from State toll roads, while a score or more States will be affected by the diversion ban.

The second resolution was adopted with the provision that highway users be included in the membership of each State committee.

The third resolution was a report presented by the highway safety committee, which noted that unless traffic fatality rates change, there will be 46,000 deaths, 1,400,000 premanently injured and 15,600,000 temporarily disabled in the next 12 years.

Army Segregation Opponents Picket At White House

Pickets led by A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters (AFL), yesterday paraded in front of the White House handing out lapel buttons which said, "Don't Join Jim Crow Army."

Randolph said in a statement that his group, the Committee Against Jim Crow in Military Service and Training, will organize a lawyers' panel to defend anyone who boycotts the draft or universal training.

Naval Aviation To Mark Birthday

Annapolis, Md., May 7 (AP).—The Naval Academy, once the center of pioneer Navy flights, will mark the thirty-seventh anniversary of naval aviation without fanfare tomorrow.

Thirty-seven Naval Reserve planes from Anacostia Field, are scheduled to swoop over the academy tomorrow afternoon (2:15 p. m.) but the midshipmen will barely have time between classes to mark the birthday.

It was 37 years ago tomorrow that the Navy established an aviation department. Its first "aviation camp" was set up near the academy grounds off Sandy Point, where daredevil pilots in "baling wire" planes flew over Chesepeake Bay.

The first class in aeronautics at the academy was started in 1926. It was in December, 1945, that the subject gained full status as an academic department.

Today all midshipmen take flight indoctrination and must learn the technical side of flying as well.

After Annapolis, the 37 Reserve planes will salute Baltimore, Hagerstown, Martinsburg, W. Va., and Washington.

D. C. Oleo Gifts Get to Canada But Cause Stir

Canada, which has had an iron curtain against margarine for 50 years, had 4 pounds of Washington margarine yesterday.

Four Ottawa members of the Board of Trade, in Washington on a goodwill tour, left here Thursday bearing edible gifts of celery, lettuce and other scarce items, including the margarine, of which there is considerable dearth in Canada.

The Washington Board of Trade fancied up the butter substitute in cellophane and blue ribbon and the Canadians swore they'd get in through customs.

They did—but the assistant deputy minister of customs was loud in his criticism of the customs man who let it through.

"Margarine has been prohibited in Canada for half a century," he said. "It still is banned. It must not under any circumstances enter the country."

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Here's a Political Primer for Voteless Washington

The primary elections and the upcoming presidential race have aroused great interest in politics hereabouts.

But many District Liners are political novices, because they have never had a chance to vote, or to exercise the other fundamental rights of suffrage.

For the benefit of any constituents of mine who may be uninformed about these matters, I have compiled a basic political primer, which explains the terms most commonly used:

Candidate: Public servant, willing to do his duty.

Incumbent: Parasite, feeding at the public trough.

Demagogue: Opposition candidate who has gotten hold of a popular issue.

Politician: Man who gets money from the rich, and votes from the poor, on the promise that he'll protect them from each other.

Budget: An ever-changing figure which grows larger each time it is cut.

Economy: What the minority party constantly demands of the Administration.

Liberal: Pronoun of the first person.

Voter: Innocent bystander who invariably gets stuck with the check.

YOU BET

Many readers have been wondering what happened to our old friend Jay Aitch, whose rhymes used to liven up this space on occasion.

Jay has been working on a book and several magazine pieces, and has been "too busy to write stuff for free when other people are willing to pay me for it."

However the current gambling probe has moved him to rattle off the following answer to my recent poem to District Attorney Fay:

The D. A., Fay, may try today
The numbers boys to rout.
To get them all, both big and small
Shall be a worthy bout.
But this I say, and odds I'll lay,
Sure as this page is inked:
The folks who bet will be here yet
When Mister Fay's extinct.

Jay Aitch may have a point there. Nobody can change human nature over night. But nevertheless, I suspect that the gamblers are by this time wishing that Mr. Fay would get lost. As I see it:

The "books" will get a lot less play,
And may find times quite tough.
They'll lose no love on Mister Fay
If he starts playing rough.

W. N. "Bill" Freeman of 3350 Runnymede pl. nw. is an honest man. Too honest for the purposes of this column.

Bill got off a good wisecrack the other day, and when I said I was going to quote it, he held up a left hand as forbidding as Toscanini's. "Don't do it," he warned. "It's not original."

Original or not, it's still funny. A couple of the boys were kidding Bill about his garden, whereupon Freeman quipped:

"Whatever gardening success I have, I can attribute to the sweat of my frau."

EASY AS PIE

Our recent item about the Maiatico building at Connecticut ave. and H st. nw. moves C. Kendall of 2 18th st. se. to ask:

"Yeah, but how do you pronounce it?"

The girl who answers the telephone at Jerry Maiatico's office furnishes a quick answer. She calls it: My-AT-i-co.

Incidentally, I trust that this item will help to convince that young lady that I'm sane. After she answered the phone by pronouncing Jerry's name, all I said was, "Thanks, miss, that's all I wanted to know." She probably thinks the call came from St. Elizabeths.

BILL HENRY HAS HIS LIGHTER MOMENTS

On my news program the other day I had a fashion item which revealed that a Paris dressmaker had "designed clothes which can be worn around the clock."

I was no sooner off the air than I got a call from Bill Henry, crackerjack CBS newscaster, who quipped:

"Somebody ought to tell that designer that if he'd forget about clothes that can be worn around the clock and start making clothes that can be worn around the body he'd do more business."

Nazi Intrigue With Islam Still Secret

By Drew Pearson

One of the richest war prizes captured from the Germans was a series of Nazi documents on Hitler's secret deals. These gave a gold mine of information on Nazi intrigue all over the world and should help the American people to avoid war in the future. Many of these documents have now been made public. But significantly, highly illuminating German secrets pertaining to the Arabs so far have not. They are especially enlightening today in view of the Palestine crisis and the Arab claim that they deserve world sympathy.

Pearson

British diplomats, this columnist is informed, were bitter when they first learned of Arab-Nazi intrigue at a time when the British were fighting with their backs to the wall near Suez. But despite British resentment, the texts of the Nazi messages have not been made public, even though captured at the expense of Anglo-American blood.

British diplomats have admitted that pressure from Washington is the reason for suppressing these documents. The U. S. Defense Department — which means Forrestal — plus American oil are not anxious to embarrass the Arab leaders. That apparently is why the American public does not know that King Farouk of Egypt furnished war secrets to Field Marshal Rommel when the British had their backs to the wall in Egypt.

It also remains a top secret that King Farouk corresponded with Hitler during the war and that Rachid el Gailani, former Minister-President of Iraq, received bribes from the Nazis, and that King Ibn Saud also dickered with Hitler.

However, this column has been able to obtain copies of some of the secret Arab-Nazi correspondence. Here is one letter dated March 24, 1943, in which King Farouk of Egypt informed German Ambassador Ettel that he was "still hoping for an Axis victory." The letter from Ambassador Ettel to Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop follows:

"Secret State Matter.

Berlin, March 24, 1943.

"Ambassador Ettel

"The confidential agent who transmitted a message from the Reich to King Farouk, has, in the meantime, returned from Egypt. During his stay he had two lengthy conversations with King Farouk. In these conversations the King gratefully acknowledged the security measures which the Reich had taken for his person and the manner in which this delicate question had been handled. King Farouk instructed the confidential agent to convey the King's gratitude to the Foreign Minister of the Reich.

"The King informed the confidential agent that, as in the past, he was still hoping for an Axis victory. Specifically, the King declared that the rumors which were being circulated about a rapproachement between him and the democracies, were nothing else but a matter of political expediency and shrewdness, necessary for the then prevailing circumstances. The King also expressed his thanks for the dilatory way in which the matter of Prince Mansur's departure from Istanboul had been handled. Under the present circumstances, the King no longer objected to the Prince going to Italy or Germany.

Finally, the King instructed the confidential agent to convey his best wishes to the Mufti of Jerusalem and to all those who work with him for the success and the victory of the Axis.

Submitted to the Foreign Minister of the Reich. Sgd. ETTEL."

Real Estate Lobby

For sheer effrontery, last week's battle over the Cain housing bill—a half-baked measure to guarantee the profits of private builders, while ignoring the vital need for low-cost public housing and slum clearance—tops anything the real estate lobby has pulled in recent times.

Senator Harry P. Cain, Republican, of Washington, elected as an out-and-out real estate champion, certainly lived up to the expectation of his sponsors. He waited until Senators Ralph Flanders of Vermont, John Sparkman of Alabama, Bob Taft of Ohio and other proponents of public housing were absent from town before asking Senate approval of the real estate bonanza.

Meantime, House leaders were keeping their own chamber in recess, standing by to pass the bill once the Senate had acted. Meantime, also, sitting big as life on the Senate floor were those tireless pals of the real estate lobby, Representatives Jesse Wolcott of Michigan and Ralph Gamble of New York. House majority leader Charles Halleck of Indiana also sat eagerly on a sofa at the edge of the Senate floor.

These three musketeers occasionally huddled with young Senator Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin, another friend of the lobby.

However, when alert Senators William Fulbright of Arkansas, Democrat, and Irving Ives of New York, Republican, finally blocked action until foes of the legislation could be present to vote, Halleck's face blazed with anger.

As he left the Senate, muttering with rage, a Senator called after him: "Well, I guess you boys took a licking."

Halleck turned, rubbed his nose like a prizefighter.

"Yeah, maybe we did, but just wait!" barked the Hoosier Congressman.
